Vol. 47 No. 41 | www.lancasterfarming.com | Four Sections | Saturday, August 10, 2002 | $36.00 Per Year | $1.00 Per Copy

PMMB Maintains Over-Order Premium

Board Member: 'Tough Decision'

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) voted this week to uphold the state's $1.65 per hundredweight over-order premium paid to producers, despite a petition from milk dealers that it be lowered to remain competitive in the marketplace.

The over-order premium is the amount paid above the federally mandated price to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for fluid milk produced, processed, and sold within the state.

Luke Brubaker, PMMB member and Mount Joy dairy farmer, said the board's 3-0 vote was in response to a depressed milk market.

"Farmers right now are in a tight crunch," he said. "Milk prices are as low as they've been in the last few years."

The $1.65 premium is scheduled to expire at the end of December.

In a July 30 hearing before the PMMB, the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers (PAMD) had asked that the premium be lowered to $1.25. The PAMD testified that the $1.65 premium was threatening to drive buyers of Pennsylvania milk to some surrounding states where over-order premiums are less than $1 per hundredweight, according to Earl Fink, PAMD executive vice president.

Joel Rotz, dairy specialist with the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB), testified in favor of maintaining the $1.65 premium, pointing to declining milk prices and that no significant drop in production cost is expected. He noted that production and cow numbers have decreased from last year, and that drought and heat are taking a toll on Pennsylvania dairy farms.

According to Brubaker, the aim of the over-order premium is

Dairy Program Sign-Up To Begin

Teleconference Panelists Give Farm Bill Update

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dairy producers should be able to start signing up for market loss payments under the new Farm Bill this coming week.

Jackie Stonfer of the USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) in Harrisburg said that Tuesday, Aug. 13, has been set as the official start of the sign-up, but agents will probably not be able to begin processing applications quite that soon.

Sign-ups will most likely begin "by the end of (the coming) week," Stonfer said. Farmers can then expect payment within 60 days of applying — or about mid-October.

This first lump sum payment will be retroactive from Dec. 1, 2001, for eligible milk production up to 2.4 million pounds, the annual cap set on the program. Payment rates are 45 percent of the difference between $16.94 per hundredweight and the Boston Class I price for months when the price was lower.

For milk that will be produced during the coming fiscal year from Oct. 1, 2002 to Sept. 30 of 2003, dairy producers can select the month they want to start receiving payments for eligible production, according to Dann Stuart, FSA chief of public affairs. Farmers signing up this month will be asked to select the month they want payments to begin, but will have until Sept. 30 to change their selection, Stuart said.

Stonfer said that dairy farmers can ensure that they are ready for the sign-up beforehand.

"One thing you could do prior to sign-up is make sure you have a conservation plan," she said. Conservation plans are required for any farm to be eligible for funds.

"At this point, you just need to sign a form for the NRCS (Natural Resources Conservation Service) to come out and determine if your farm needs any special practices," she said.

Procedures have not yet been established that might allow dairy farmers from groups such as the Amish to receive the subsidies via their milk cooperatives, Stonfer said.

Stonfer joined a panel of Farm Bill analysts Tuesday in a teleconference broadcasted from Penn State to various extension offices across the state.

The painstaking political process of working out details of the Farm Bill creates a lot of uncertainty about exactly how the various programs will be administered, Stonfer noted. Numerous USDA agents and attorneys are involved in the process of distributing the $170 billion earmarked for agriculture over the next six years.

"It has to go through so many people to get approval," Stonfer said.

Ken Bailey, Penn State dairy economist, noted that the process helps to ensure funds are distributed as fairly as possible.

"(Administrators) want to make sure that a year from now this program isn't on '60 Minutes' or something," Bailey said.

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was light with dealers unaggressive and kept floor stocks in balance with immediate needs. Supplies of all sizes were at least adequate to readily available. Retail and distributive movement was slow. The market tone was steady at best.

National Turkey Market At A Glance

Des Moines, Iowa
Report Supplied By USDA

DOMESTIC MARKET HIGHLIGHTS: The market tone was generally steady on hens and toms. Negotiations were in progress and sellers anticipated an increased demand as the Thanksgiving holiday period draws nearer. Trading was heavy on Grade A 4-8 lb breasts for September-October shipments. Domestic activity was spotty on bulk meat and very light on bulk parts. On August 6 USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service purchased 5,606,000 pounds of turkey and turkey products for school lunch and other domestic food nutrition assistance programs.

EXPORT MARKET HIGHLIGHTS: A heavy volume of tom drums moved into export channels with some negotiations at lower trending prices. Light volumes of thigh meat moved at prices that were steady in relationship to the destinations. Tails traded at unchanged to higher trending prices. Hen drums and thigh trim with bone fragments both traded at 20 cents delivered port.

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment overall was no better than steady, but mostly steady. Retail demand was sluggish to fair and not as strong as expected or hoped for first of the month business. Food service was light to moderate, best into fast food and delis. Supplies of all sizes were readily available to easily handle trade needs. In the parts structure, trading was light to fair since most relied on regular commitments to satisfy needs. Breast items were mixed, but sufficient, with sized product closer balanced. Dark meat and wings were adequate to ample with limited interest. In production areas, live supplies were moderate at weights in a full range, but mostly desirable.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Next Mondays release of the USDAs Crop Production report is on everybodys minds as traders are trying to strategically position themselves with a lot of uncertainty. Traders especially concerned with the soybeans as Mondays production numbers could send prices sharply higher or lower. Cooler temperatures have been nice, but would have been more widely accepted with a little more moisture. Extended forecasts continue to look drier than normal, which is not a good thing for soybeans. Wheat was riding solo today, separating itself from corn and soybeans. Concerns over drought conditions in winter wheat areas are now arising as planting is coming up pretty quick.

Wheat 1 to 4 cents higher, with St. Louis Soft Red Winter Wheat 9 cents Higher. Corn steady to 2 cents lower. Soybeans 2 to 3 cents lower, with the exception of Minneapolis 8 cents higher. Sorghum 1 to 7 cents lower.

Corn Belt Feedstuff

St. Joseph, Mo.
Aug. 6, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

CORN BELT FEEDSTUFF: Wholesale Bids. Truck or Rail dollars per ton. Feedstuff prices finished steady to mostly higher. This is in response to good buyer interest, but primarily higher grain and fluctuating soybean prices. Damage in the corn fields from continuous hot, dry weather responsible for higher gains as corn is now pretty much made. Soybean meal sold sharply higher with a lot of uncertainty in the bean fields as moisture will definitely give us direction this month. Hay prices were steady with concern over quantity and quality. Cooler temperatures are in the forecast this week, with chances of scattered showers.

SOYBEAN MEAL: 48 percent rail was 11.00 lower at 178.00-179.00. 48 percent truck was 11.00 lower at 190.00-192.00 per ton.

CORN BY-PRODUCTS: Gluten Feed 21 percent, Interior Points steady to 1.00 lower from 57.00-58.00; Chicago was steady to 1.00 higher from 57.00-66.00. 60 percent Gluten Meal, Interior Points 5.00 higher at 270.00-275.00; Chicago was steady to 1.00 higher from 268.00-280.00 per ton. Rail Hominy Feed, Central Illinois Points was 2.00 to 7.00 higher from 60.00-61.00; truck was 4.00 higher at 60.00-62.00. Crude Corn Oil was 1.00 to 1.25 higher from 21.00-22.00 cents per pound.

MILLFEEDS: Northwest steady to 2.00 higher from 53.00-64.00; Buffalo steady from 48.00-55.00 per ton.

ALFALFA PELLETS: Toledo, Ohio 17 percent dehydrated steady from 146.00-167.00; meal steady from 149.50-170.50. 15 percent was steady from 131.00-164.50 per ton; meal steady from 134.50-168.00.

DISTILLER'S DRIED GRAINS: Central Illinois 5.00 to 6.00 higher at 83.00-90.00; Chicago 1.00 to 5.00 higher at 79.00-94.00; Lawrenceburg, IL., closed for seasonal shut down until Oct.; Kansas and Nebraska were 5.00 to 7.00 higher at 95.00-100.00; Minneapolis was steady at 80.00 per ton.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC — THIS WEEK WITH

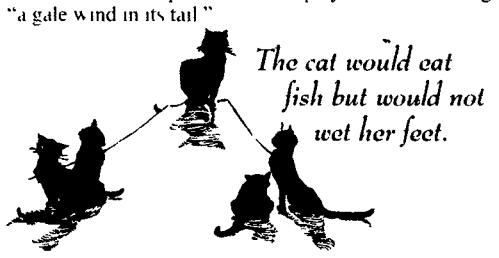
MOON ON THE EQUATOR, AUG. 12

WHAT CATS KNOW

Cat Nights begin on August 17, it's a time that felines are said to get yowly when the nights remain hot Weather lore is full of feline prognostications including the idea that cats with their tails up and hair "apparently electrified" indicate wind Note which way a cat faces when she washes, and you'll know which direction the wind will blow from A cat on the hearth is considered a sure sign of rain, but when the feline scratches table legs, the weather will change soon Old salts described a quarrelsome or playful cat as having "a gale wind in its tail"



The cat would eat fish but would not wet her feet.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When a cat sneezes, it is a sign of rain.

If you rub a cat's back the wrong way and see sparks, cold weather is coming

TIP OF THE WEEK

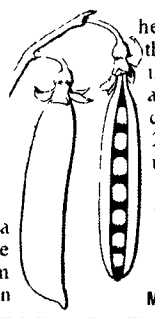
BAY SCALLOPS AND SUMMER PEAS

3 tablespoons butter
1 pound fresh spinach
2 cups light cream
salt and pepper, to taste
2 pounds bay scallops
1 cup shelled, fresh peas
1 cup sugar snap peas
1 cup snow peas



Melt the butter in a skillet and saute the spinach Add cream and seasonings, then heat to reduce the sauce Drop in the scallops and peas and cook for about 2 to 5 minutes until the scallops are just done Serve immediately, over pasta if desired Makes 6 servings.

OPINION

Jay Irwin 1926-2002

Agent Mentor

Common sense. There's an old saying that "common sense is not so common." But I saw that in Jay Irwin, who brought a pragmatic aptitude, a dynamism of practical thought and procedure, to agriculture.

I will miss that refreshing attitude. When the industry was in near panic, as it had been during the terrible avian influenza crisis of 1983-84, Jay worked to calm the industry down and to help solve the problem.

Jay passed away recently at the age of 76. Jay was the county extension director when I began at Lancaster Farming more than a dozen years ago.

Jay, a Landisville resident, really kept most of his heart in Happy Valley. I can't recall a time when a comment or two wasn't made about Coach Joe-Pa, the Nittany Lions football team, and what chances Penn State had against Nebraska.

I knew Jay because I ate lunch with him most times during the very many Penn State-sponsored poultry health and management conferences at Kreider's Restaurant in Manheim. Football and the Lions were at every lunch. No one could ever doubt how dedicated Jay was to the Lions and Lancaster County agriculture, almost in equal measure.

I remember speaking to Jay at the Farm and Home Center during the last serious avian influenza (A.I.) outbreak in the region in the late '90s. By then, Jay had a disposition that was positive about control. Never any panic. He was always there to answer our questions. He respected the press and knew how important they were. And he made sure we not only got the facts, he pointed us in the right direction. As an agent, he was a true mentor for extension agriculture, for industry, and for the press.

(This was late '90s, mind you, long after he had retired. But that's the thing about Jay — he never retired! You can get the man out of agriculture, but you can't get agriculture out of the man. Besides, I would remind him at the Kreider lunches, in his retirement, after dedicating his life to agriculture, what else was he going to do?)

Jay Irwin also contributed a lot to Lancaster Farming — directly. He wrote the Now Is the Time column on this page when he began as county extension director for Lancaster in 1981 until he retired in 1991. And we have his first column, dated when we announced he was director on March 28, 1981, about how it was time "to check ventilation systems." Jay wrote, "This is a good time to go through your buildings and clean the fan blades, louvers, and screens." That advice is still pertinent.

Jay's last Now Is the Time column was dated May 4, 1991, when he "bid farewell -- time for a change." He mentioned that he had passed his 65th birthday. John Schwartz became director and took over duties at the column. But Jay noted that he wasn't totally retiring because he accepted a temporary duty assignment with USDA extension and Penn State's program to serve as adviser with a team going to Poland from June 2-Nov. 29, 1991.

Jay's pragmatic, no-nonsense, common-sense approach to handling the challenges of agriculture persisted even in those columns, and he spoke about maintaining that positive attitude right to the end of the column in May 1991, mentioning how computers would improve farm efficiency and the benefits to everyone about incorporating integrated pest management (IPM) strategies. He stayed at the forefront of knowledge about these issues.

Even to the last, Jay maintained that approach, contributing where he could at the Kreider meetings and the many places agriculture took him. Even at the end, he was learning about ag developments — it's a lifelong process — with other county agents in Savannah, Ga.

Leon Ressler, county extension director, noted Jay "was active until his last day." I think Jay wanted it that way. I think he wants us all in agriculture to take that to heart, to continue to learn, to continue to make agriculture prosper.

Goodbye, agent . . . mentor. And friend.

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Remember Jay Irwin

Agriculture lost a loyal friend with the passing of Lancaster County Extension Director Emeritus Jay Irwin.

Jay's quiet and steady leadership earned him deep respect across the agriculture community. He began his extension career in Lancaster County in 1967 after spending 15 years managing Farm Bureau cooperatives in Indiana, Venango, and Westmoreland counties.

Jay earned his bachelor's degree in agriculture economics from Penn State in 1949 after serving in the Navy on a submarine in the South Pacific during World War II. His interest in agriculture economics led him to keep statistics to plot farming trends. He used this information in guiding farmers to making wise decisions and assisted farm families with financial planning. As the livestock production intensified in the county, Jay sought ways for farmers to manage their manure with environmentally sound methods.

Jay worked closely with the poultry industry and provided training in all aspects of production. His leadership was especially critical when the region was struck with a disastrous avian influenza outbreak in 1983-1984. When the disease was first diagnosed in the county in the spring of 1983, Jay went to work to help the county's 700 producers slow the spread of the disease. He urged producers to tighten sanitation procedures and taught them how to do so. He began seminars to teach veterinarians how to diagnose and combat the disease.

When the disease reached epidemic proportions in the fall of 1983, the county was placed under quarantine and the state and federal avian influenza task force arrived to enforce the quarantine and depopulate infected flocks. Jay provided crucial liaison between the task force and the community. He met with producers to explain the importance of strict quarantine and to help them accept the task force's work. In all, the county's producers lost 16 million birds.

Jay's commitment went beyond the job to caring for the families involved. Within one year the industry was back to full production in spite of some predictions it would take three years to recover. Jay's work in combating the epidemic was recognized in 1985 when he was awarded the Distinguished Service Award from USDA.

Jay remained actively involved in agriculture throughout his retirement, and it was a pleasure to interact within him at many events over his retirement years. He became my mentor and I appreciated his counsel and support. I could always go to him for advice.

I will always remember the day in November of 2000 when he came to see me to encourage me to apply for the position of county extension director. I appreciated that although he strongly encouraged me to apply, he also said if I didn't believe I should, he would understand. This was an example of his gentle leadership style.

I enjoyed seeing him almost weekly when he came to attend the Lancaster Rotary Club meeting. He was an avid Penn State football fan and I enjoying discussing our prospects with him. He felt we had a chance to beat Nebraska in September.

Besides his interest in agriculture, he also was active in his church, Bethany Presbyterian in Lancaster. Over the years he served as elder, deacon, trustee, Sunday School teacher, and served on the worship committee. He was a dedicated family man and celebrated 54 years of marriage to Betty in April. He loved interacting with his five daughters and their families, which included 11 grandchildren.

Jay will be sorely missed by many.

To Plan To Attend Ag Progress Days With The Whole Family

From building character to building a bank account, from reading skills to sanitary skills, parents and children who visit the Family Learning Hub at Penn State's 2002 Ag Progress Days Aug. 20-22 will find a wealth of fun and information.

Located on Main Street between West 8th and 9th streets at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, the area includes the Family Room building, the ImAGination Station, the Family Animal Learning Center, and Shaver's Creek Environmental Center.

The theme in the Family Room is "Healthy Foods, Healthy Families," according to Marilyn Furry, Penn State associate professor of agricultural and extension education. "We present the latest research and high-priority extension programs," she said, "but they're in contexts that are fun and engaging for children. We're addressing important issues for Pennsylvania today. But they're wrapped up in fun activities like a treasure hunt, guessing the totals in a piggy bank, and 'fishing' for saving tips."

Of course there will also be more than 350 exhibitors, crop production information, field machinery demonstrations, and animal exhibits. Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days is conducted at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday; 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday. Admission and parking are free.

Quote of The Week:

"Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ON 'WISING UP'

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 3 through 4.
Devotional Reading:
Proverbs 3:1-8.

I don't know whether "wise up" is still in the popular vocabulary. Maybe it is no longer "cool," but it wasn't many decades ago that it was a popular, if somewhat rude, invitation to get smart. Regardless of how you say it, "wising up" is a very good thing.

We are living in "The Information Age" with mass access to tremendous stores of data through computers. We also have "smart cards," "smart bombs," and other technological "smart" devices. So, who needs proverbs or wisdom?

All of us, I believe, need wisdom, and getting information per se is not the same as getting wisdom. Data can help us in making judgments and decisions, but all the data in the world cannot keep us from unwise actions.

For example: how many people who have all the data they need on the harmful effects of smoking continue to smoke? Or how many people who have all the data they need on the catastrophic dangers of global warming continue to treat God's creation as an expendable resource? Wisdom consists of knowing what to do with the data — and doing it.

Wisdom: God's Gift

The Book of Proverbs is classified as wisdom literature, one of the five types of writing found in the Old Testament, along with history, law, devotions, and prophecy. Although it is the single largest depository of wisdom writing in the Old Testament, it also can be found in other Old Testament books and even in the New Testament. The Beatitudes, for example, are a kind of wisdom writing and in Matt. 11:19, Jesus says, "wisdom is justified by her children."

In John 1:1, the evangelist's use of the Greek word "logos" (the word) is related to the concept of God's wisdom. Scholars identify 16 "wisdom parables" of Jesus, and Paul regards wisdom was one of the "gifts of the Spirit."

There are two kinds of wisdom writings in the Bible: practical/utilitarian and theoretical/speculative. Earliest and most prevalent are the practical and utilitarian types of wisdom. This is wisdom that proposes to teach us how to live our daily lives. Most of the passages from which we will be studying Proverbs are of that type.

There is a problem we must confront at the very start of our study of Proverbs, for it would appear that those who value and live by wisdom will receive tangible benefits. Among these benefits are "Length of days and years of life and abundant welfare. . . ." (3:2), ". . . favor and good repute in the sight of God and man" (3:4), ". . . healing to your flesh and refreshment to your bones" (3:8), "barns . . . filled with plenty and . . . vats . . . bursting with wine" (3:10), guidance and protection (3:23-26).

Practical Benefits

What about those claims? According to several recent surveys and polls, religious people are healthier, happier, and more successful than the average person who is not religious. Couples who pray together have more satisfactory, intimate lives. But while those benefits are experienced by large numbers of people, we know for a certainty that religious convictions and practice may also bring persecution, suffering, and even death.

Our Lord Jesus Christ is the clearest reminder that following him may lead to a cross, as most of his apostles discovered.

Neither should we conclude, as did the friends of Job, that illness is a sign that we have sinned against God, that a person who lives a long life is necessarily a good person, or that a rich person is so blessed because he or she walked by spiritual wisdom.

Living by wisdom and insight does greatly enrich both our lives and those of our neighbors, and we can experience for ourselves the wisdom of him or her who discovered: " 'Happy is the man who finds wisdom, and the man who gets understanding, for the gain from it is better than gain from silver and its profit better than gold" (3:13,14).

I'm not sure the world has "wised up" to that even now.

Recently there has been a lot of attention given to a House Bill that would impose tariff rate quotas on Milk Protein Concentrate (MPC). H.R. 1786 is typical of dairy "fixes" that issue forth from the bowels of politics.

The first and most dangerous aspect of this bill is that it grants

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
August 3, 2002
Markets React
To Summer Heat

- Relief from heat short-lived.
- Cheese market sends mixed signals.
- July Class III prices announced.
- Cash flow tight!

Heat and humidity have blanketed much of the U.S., resulting in temperatures in the 80s and 90s everywhere except the Northwest. In addition, concerns about drought-like conditions in some parts of the Cornbelt have some market watchers concerned about higher feed grain prices.

According to USDA's Dairy Market News, this hot weather pattern is "deterring milk output in the central and eastern regions. However, in the West, production is steady with areas of California showing a significant rebound from heat-induced problems two weeks earlier."

This of course is sending mixed signals to the cheese market, where prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange have risen slightly above support levels.

For the week ending Aug. 2, blocks traded at $1.1620 per pound and barrels at $1.1175. The rise in block prices is a bit strange, considering cheese stocks are more than adequate and market demand is weak. But the reduction in milk output through much of the U.S. is probably the reason for this.

Butter remained fairly constant this week, with Grade AA butter trading at an average $1.0642 per pound in Chicago. This slight rise from last week is because of the reduced cream supplies available to the market. The hot summer weather is fueling ice cream sales; thus, cream supplies are moving into ice cream plants and not butter churns.

USDA announced the federal order prices this week. Class III prices fell from $10.09 per CWT in June to $9.33 per CWT in July. This drop of $0.76 per CWT was due entirely to the drop in the wholesale price of cheese in July. Class IV milk prices fell just $0.07 per CWT from the month before to $10.45 per CWT in July. This slight decline in Class IV prices was due to the fact that butter prices dropped only $0.02 per pound in July, and nonfat dry milk prices remained at support levels.

According to the futures markets at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, this represents the "bottom" of the market for Class III milk. Class III prices should increase about $0.30 per CWT in August and then increase about $1.60 per CWT in September. The August milk check that producers receive in September will be the worst check for the year. Milk prices should rebound about $1-$2 per CWT the rest of the year relative to July lows.

One final note. Dairy producers eligible to receive the new dairy deficiency payments under the 2002 Farm Bill can expect to receive an average of $1.04 per CWT on up to 2.4 million pounds of milk marketed for the months of December 2001 through August 2002. This will represent a significant amount of money for most dairy producers, particularly given current weak market conditions.

However, because of reduced staffing at USDA and an avalanche of new programs under the Farm Bill, this money won't

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.4260-1.5112. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.4260-1.5431 mostly 1.4473-1.4899.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9200-1.0300; Class III - spot prices - .8000-.9300.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 52, Out 0; last week - In 49, Out 0; last year - In 4, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 140, Out 0.

The following are the July 2002 Class and component prices under the Federal Milk Order pricing system: Class II $11.14 (down $0.05 from June), Class III $9.33 (down $0.76); and Class IV $10.45 (down $0.07). The following are product price averages used in computing Class prices: butter $1.0112, NDM $0.9033, cheese $1.1004, and dry whey $0.1545. The Class II butterfat price is $1.0999 and the Class III/IV butterfat price is $1.0909.

Cooler temperatures have returned to much of the region, but milk output has not shown too many signs of rebounding. Milk output in New England is steady at low, seasonal levels. Combine low milk output with the low prices producers are receiving and contacts wonder if the number of farmers leaving the business will start to increase as we move into fall. As one contact stated tongue-in-cheek, the "bigger truck" theory of doing business can last only so long. There is growing concern about what impact the supply of good quality hay in the Northeast and a poor corn crop will have on milk output during the winter. Yields on the incoming milk are low.

Fluid milk supplies are reported as tight from New England to Florida. This week, Florida's milk imports came from Pennsylvania and Michigan. With schools starting to open in Florida and other Southern states, school lunch pipelines are beginning to be filled. This impact on Class I demand will be greater next week when more schools are on a full-week schedule.

In the Northeast, milk is tight and a combination of early-month sales and the need for milk in other areas is keeping surplus milk volumes quite light. Manufacturing plants are shipping milk to meet Class I needs which means less milk to process. Some operations have cut back to only a few days a week.

In the Southeast, some seasonal manufacturing plants have been idled and others are just running on weekends. However, reports indicate that some Southwest milk is being shipped intra-company for processing in the Southeast.

The condensed skim market is about steady. Some price changes were noted, but most producers are holding at last month's prices and Class II formula prices are little changed.

The fluid cream market is strong and supplies are tight. Some producers report no spot sales this week and many were barely able to meet their contract sales. In some instances, supplemental loads had to be purchased to cover commitments. Spot prices are often higher as both the CME average and multiples increased this week. Multiples in the low 140's f.o.b. are more common.

Ice cream production is seasonally heavy. Soft serve and frozen novelty sales have been particularly good during the recent heat wave. Cream cheese output is about steady and some suppliers have been getting more calls from buyers looking for cream. Churning activity is light and generally limited to a few Eastern operations that have contracts to fill.

Lancaster Farming has scheduled a special promotional issue, Aug. 17, of Penn State's Ag Progress Days 2002. The event is scheduled Aug. 20-22 in Rockspring. The special issue is set to include a map of the exhibition area, exhibitor list, a detailed schedule of events, news items, and other material.

LS Series: the Real Value in Aluminum Livestock Trailers

Available in: 13' & 16' Bumper Hitch models, and a 16' Gooseneck Model.

16'L x 6'5"W x 6'6"H Gooseneck, also available in 7' height

The versatile, light-weight and affordable Maverick LS Series has been introduced to provide the small to mid-size farm and livestock operations with the benefits of Eby all-aluminum construction. These models feature a reduced width (6'5") for improved visibility and handling–they are designed to be pulled with lighter duty trucks and SUVs.

16'L x 6'5"W x 6'6"H Bumper Hitch, also available in 7' height

13'L x 6'5"W x 6'6"H Bumper Hitch, also available in 7' height

Engineered for durable performance for a wide range of livestock, these trailers are built without compromising Eby's standards.

Brother-Sister Duo Sweep Reading Fair Holstein Open Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Stumpland Corky Blair-ET, exhibited by Duane Stump, Bernville, won grand champion Holstein in the open show Wednesday afternoon at the Reading Fair.

Stump exhibited the 4-year-old (S: Corky, D: Bobbi) to the exhibitor's first champion at the Reading Fair.

Stump also shows cows at the Kutztown Fair and the Farm Show in January.

Judge Richard Hess, Strasburg, a dairy specialist with Purina Mills, selected the senior 2-year-old shown by Duane's sister, Doris Alspaugh, as reserve. Alspaugh, Bernville, exhibited Stumpland Lee Celena (S: Lee, D: Xena) to Alspaugh's first championship at Reading. (Alspaugh said she had reserve champion at the fair as a 4-H member.)

Alspaugh noted she may show at state Farm Show in January.

In the junior show, Hess noted the open show champion, a winter yearling exhibited by Lynette Heffner, Fantasyland Leduc Camille (S: Lystel Leduc-ET, D: Fantasyland Delaware Cameo), is a "fast, upstanding individual, with good smoothness and dairyness throughout." The reserve, shown by Andrew Younker, winter heifer calf Favreautiere Igniter Pamtouf (S: Summers Wade Igniter, D: Favreautiere Pam) "shows style and balance and dairyness out over the top," said Hess.

There were 205 cows entered in the contest. Following is a list of show placings.

Berks Co. Plans Concert

STRAUSSTOWN (Berks Co.) — As part of the many activities celebrating Berks County's 250th anniversary, several organizations have combined to sponsor a concert and drawing on September 14 at the Pat Garrett Amphitheater, Strausstown.

Proceeds from the event will be used for the preservation of farmland and conservation land in Berks County.

The concert features the Charlie Daniels Band at 8:15 p.m. with the Pat Garrett Band at 7 p.m., Twitty Fever at 6 p.m., and Steel Canyon at 5 p.m.

Event organizers felt it would be too difficult to determine which farmer should receive help so these monies will go to protect land, according to Berks County extension agent Clyde Myers.

The funding source will help preserve farm and conservation land in areas where county and state purchase of conservation easement program is not able to secure land because not enough funds are available, according to Myers.

All profits will go to the Berks County Community Foundation.The raffle includes a John Deere lawn tractor, Grange quilt, chain saw, gas grill, bronze carving, cash, and gift certificates to area businesses. Raffle tickets are on sale at $10 for one or three for $25 at the Berks County Agricultural Center (610) 372-4992 or the Berks Count Conservancy (610) 372-4992.Leadership for the activity came from Berks County's 250th Celebration Committee, Grange, Conservancy, Farmland Preservation Board, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Farm-City Council, and all the raffle item providers.

Ticket prices for the golden circle are $35, reserved seats are $30, and general tickets are $23.

Holstein Named Supreme Champion At Troy Youth Dairy Show

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Calkins Farm Pete Berachab, owned by Randy Calkins, of Troy, was named the supreme champion of the 2002 Troy Fair, Tuesday, July 23.

The senior 3-year-old Holstein bred by Calkins Farm was selected as the overall champion by judges Owen and Cathy Bewley, of Susquehanna.

More than 200 head representing seven breeds were exhibited by Bradford County youth at this year's show.

Named the reserve champion in the Holstein ring was Pennvale Supreme Reva, a 5-year-old owned by Jason Kenyon.

The junior champion Holstein was Jodi Lynn Crawford's summer yearling, Ho-Crawf Durham Marika. She was followed by Jamie Crawford's spring yearling, Ho-Crawf Spirit Laurel, who was named the reserve junior champion.

Victory Acres Naughty, a senior 3-year-old owned by Abbie Kuhlman, was chosen to be the senior and grand champion of the Brown Swiss show. Reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors were placed on CIE How-Mis Even Polly, an aged cow owned by Renee Shores. The junior champion of the Brown Swiss show was Rocky Slope RL PR Melissa, a winter calf owned by Kurtis Page. The reserve junior champion was Rocky Slope RL Banker Jentry, a fall calf also owned by Kurtis Page.

In the Jersey ring, Shauna Tavares's junior 3-year-old, Nobledale Saturn Cosmo, was named the senior and grand champion. Following her in the reserve champion position was Rolling Acres Jim DeDe, a 5-year-old owned by Becky Eick. Dreamroad Freedom Mystic, a winter yearling owned by Brent Sparling, was named the junior champion of the show. Nobledale Perimeter Vernell-ET, a fall calf owned by Maria Noble, was named reserve.

Samuel Cole exhibited all four champions in the Milking Shorthorn show. The senior and grand champion was junior 3-year-old Echo Farm Outlaw Margarita. Named reserve senior and reserve grand champion was Tudor Hall Strawberry, a 4-year-old. SR Combo Theme IC4, a fall calf, was chosen to be the junior champion. SR Combo Clay Mara, a spring calf, was named reserve.

it's nice to have a banker in the business.

John Eaton, Jr. Assistant Vice President
Business Banking Officer

John Eaton is that rare breed of banker.

He's a loan officer who's also a third-generation farmer.

Which is why John's the one to call when you need financing for equipment and livestock. A line of credit to meet emergency capital needs. Or a special First Time Farmer loan.

John has spent years working both sides of the fence.

So give him a call at 717-747-1546.

He'll shepherd your loan from start to finish.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Aug. 3, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER Summary for week ending Aug. 2. TOTAL RECEIPTS: 238,500; last week 453,500. Auctions: 168,100; last week 175,100. Direct: 70,200; last week 84,400. Video/Internet: 200; last week 194,300. This week's reported auction volume included 40 percent over 600 lbs and 44 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold steady 2.00 dollars higher according to USDA Livestock and Grain Market News. This makes 5 consecutive weeks that the majority of the reported sales were higher. The price spread on yearlings and short yearlings has narrowed. Many places there is only a 6.00 per hundred weight difference between 600 and 950 steers.

Feedlots are aggressively attempting to keep a high pen occupancy rate for most efficient operations. This is difficult due to short supplies as placement numbers continue to run fifteen to twenty percent below a year ago according to the past few Cattle on Feed Reports. Cattle feeders are putting out more money to obtain starting materials and other costs are also soaring. During this period yearling prices are up 3.00 to 4.00 dollars and corn prices have jumped around .25 cents per bushel. December futures closed today at 68.75 leaving very little hedging margin.

Drought conditions continue to become more severe and wide spread. Our economy is not a ball of fire as each week sees more big companies filing Chapter 11 bankruptcy. Year to date beef production is up four percent from a year ago due primarily to heavy carcass weights. Finished cattle held steady this week at 63.00 dollars live and 99.00 dollars in the beef, but cutouts were lower late in the week. A year ago slaughter cattle were quoted at 70.00.

to provide Pennsylvania dairy producers "top dollar without taking ourselves out of an outside market." Deciding to maintain the premium at $1.65 "was a very tough decision to make," he said.

Brubaker also defended the premium by noting that producers will probably not see any Farm Bill payments from the new federal dairy market loss program until October. While sign-up is slated to begin next week, the Farm Service Agency (FSA) is still ironing out regulatory and distribution details for the program.

Brubaker also defended the premium by noting that producers will probably not see any Farm Bill payments from the new federal dairy market loss program until October. While sign-up is slated to begin next week, the Farm Service Agency (FSA) is still ironing out regulatory and distribution details for the program.

While the premium is scheduled to expire at the end of the year, the PMMB must honor the request for a hearing in response to any "emergency situation" that may arise, according to PMMB communications specialist Tracey Jackson. Premium levels can be considered and changed by the PMMB potentially within about a month from the time an emergency hearing is requested.

The next scheduled hearing is set for November, when the PMMB will receive testimony for setting the premium amount for the first half of 2003.

The three-member PMMB consists of Beverly Minor, chairperson and dairy industry representative; Brubaker, dairy producer representative; and Barbara Grumbine, consumer representative.

of dairy farms under the market loss assistance program, which is limited to 2.4 million pounds of production annually per dairy operation. Will dairies producing more milk be allowed to name two different operations to collect more funds?

Mark Stephenson, Cornell University dairy economist, said that the Farm Bill language seems to clearly state "thou shalt not reconstitute your farm business to get more money."

But some lawmakers — most notably Patrick Leahy of Vermont — are suggesting a "more expansive" view which would allow some restructuring of farm operations.

For the time being, "we won't know until the regulations are spelled out," Stephenson said.

Panelists also noted that the definition of farm "operation" in the Farm Bill is still under consideration. For example, it's not clear how a family partnership receiving more than one milk check would be classified.

Lou Moore, Penn State ag economist, was part of a panel that focused on broader aspects of the Farm Bill, including grain provisions, crop insurance, and conservation programs.

Moore noted that increased subsidies in the new Farm Bill came as a result of near-record harvests and slumping crop prices in the last five years.

"When prices are low, the government tends to get involved," Moore said.

To critics of government farm spending, however, Moore said the farm programs come at a relatively small price tag — between 1 and 2 percent of the total U.S. budget.

According to USDA calculations, Farm Bill subsidies cost about 4.4 cents per meal per person, Moore said. And that figure includes Farm Bill funds not going to farmers — such as nutrition programs.

According to USDA calculations, Farm Bill subsidies cost about 4.4 cents per meal per person.

While Pennsylvania farmers have historically used less government subsidies than many in other states, Moore said that will have to change.

"To be competitive in agriculture, you must participate," he said.

Other panelists included Stacey Mitchell of the Natural Resources Conservation Service, who reported that $4.8 million from the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) is available to Pennsylvania producers. Sign-up for the program will run on a continuous basis.

Mitchell said EQIP rules are expected to be out for public comment on Aug. 13.

Jayson Harper, Penn State commercial ag specialist, outlined the variety of crop insurance initiatives in the Farm Bill.

Twenty-two Pennsylvania crops are eligible for insurance, including grains, fruits, and vegetables. Remaining sign-up deadlines for this year are Sept. 30 for fall-seeded crops and Nov. 20 for fruit crops.

Harper said that available crop insurance options come at "reasonable costs for pretty good protection."

FSA agents across the state are also sending letters this month for commodity producers to update their acreage, base, and yield records.

"Reviewing verifying, and updating bases and yields may be the most important thing we ask producers to do this year," said Ron Troxell of the Schuylkill County FSA office.

Producers have until Aug. 31 to update records if they want to participate in federal farm programs.

4-H'ers See Good Prices At Chester County Livestock Roundup

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — One came from Sesame Street, the other, well, it dragged a 4-H'er a little bit down the street.

We're talking real-life names here — beef champions.

The champion: Elmo, exhibited by Caitlin Fairbairn. That's in honor of the children's TV muppet Elmo, who followed his song, the "a-b-c's" with, of course, 1-2-3. And the champion was the 23rd calf born in 2001 for the Fairbairns.

The reserve: "Boogie." "When we first bought it, he dragged me 20 feet," said Austin Howe, who exhibited the purebred Hereford that didn't injure him, but there was some dirt to dust off.

Both picked up great prices at the annual Chester County 4-H Roundup Sale Wednesday evening at the Romano 4-H Center near Honey Brook. Caitlin's champion was purchased for $2.75 per pound by Acker Construction, Chester Springs, represented by Sam Acker. The reserve, shown by Austin, was purchased for $2.25 per pound by Craig Campbell, director of corporate planning and development, Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, for the Lionville store.

Caitlin's purebred Angus, heavyweight division winner at 1,343 pounds, is a homebred steer shown third in its class at the recent Pennsylvania Angus Breeders Show. Caitlin noted that to garner champion, she had to "know how to feed it right to make it grow," she said.

Caitlin, 14, is the daughter of Cheryl and Bill Fairbairn, Coatesville. Caitlin is entering ninth grade at Bishop Shannahan High School. Her advice to fellow 4-H'er beef members: "Let (the steers) be your friend, so they're calm for you."

Reserve was shown by Austin Howe, 11, son of Doug and Jennie Howe, Downingtown. Austin, a homeschooled fifth grader, purchased the reserve, a purebred Hereford, from Mr. Romano, who donated the roundup sale property to the 4-H Center.

Austin noted that the name "Boogie" came as a result of being dragged about 1,275 pounds, gets lots of exercise, noted Austin. "We walk him up and down the lane every day," he said.

This was Austin's first reserve champion at the roundup.

In the hog show, Caitlin Fairbairn exhibited "Susie," her light heavyweight champion hog. The hog sold to Bill McCauley, auctioneer, for $3 per pound.

The 251-pound Blue Butt hog was purchased from the Pfautz family. Caitlin noted she walks the hog in the pasture about two weeks before the show.

Reserve, shown by Danielle Scaringi, was light heavyweight reserve champion. The 250-pound Blue Butt was also obtained from the Pfautz family.

Danielle, 12, is the daughter of Mary and Mike Scaringi, Coatesville. Danielle is in the seventh grade at North Brandywine School. She exhibited "Sue," a named that she says she always liked.

Julia Howe, who exhibited the 117-pound grand champion lamb, decided she wanted to donate all proceeds of the sale to a worthy cause — the Casa Barnabe Orphanage in Guatemala. The lamb sold to Doug Howe, Acry-Labs, Honey Brook, for $10 a pound.

Reserve, shown by Christopher MacCauley, was purchased by his grandmother, Joan MacCauley, for $6.75 a pound.

In all, there was a total of 122 hogs, 30 lambs, and 10 steers at the annual roundup. Following is a list of show placings.

"A dollar doesn't go as far as it used to." That is the commonly held opinion and misconception among many Americans as we enter the 21st century.

Although in many cases, such as manufactured goods and services, this idiom may hold true, it does not apply to food shopping.

The United States has the most abundant and affordable food supply in the world, while we continue to find ways to increase the profitability of farming and agricultural based businesses. To understand why food is so affordable, you must first examine where your food dollar goes, past trends in food spending and how we compare to other countries.

In 1980, 31 cents on the dollar was returned to the farmer. Today, only 20 cents per dollar is paid to the farmer. The other 80 cents are used in "off-farm costs," including marketing expenses associated with processing, wholesaling, distributing, and retailing of food. Other off-farm costs include business taxes, insurance, accounting, and professional services. The off-farm costs of today directly affect the amount per dollar that gets back to the farmer. With these costs continuing to rise, it will become harder for the American farmer to turn a profit.

Many people are not aware of the affordability of food we have in the U.S. By educating your peers, you will help create awareness and appreciation for our food supply. Last year, Americans spent only 10.6 percent of their disposable income on food. Many other countries have a larger percentage go toward food purchases. India spends 51.3 percent of their income on food, and Italy and Germany spend 17.2 percent and 17.3 percent respectively.

As we all know, numbers, percentages, and figures can be skewed to provide whatever answers people are looking for. I present these percentages not to brag about "The Great American Economy" but to educate the public about the hard work American farmers put into making food more affordable for consumers.

It takes the average American 124 days to make enough money to cover tax costs for the year. A recent study by the American Farm Bureau has shown it takes the average American only 40 days to make enough money to cover food shopping costs for the entire year. This 40th day of the year is called "Food Checkout Day" and is celebrated to recognize the efficiency and productivity of America's farmers and ranchers.

The 40-day period is a huge contrast from previous years. In 1930, it took the average American 91 days and approximately 24.3 percent of their disposable income was spent on food. In 1960, it took the average American 64 days to cover yearly food costs and an estimated 17.5 percent of their disposable income was spent on food.

So what do all these numbers and statistics from the USDA and American Farm Bureau mean? Americans are spending less on food today because of a stronger supply. Spending less on food means there is disposable income for comfort goods, rather then necessities. These statistics also represent the efficiency of modern farming practices, making food more affordable for consumers.

Looking toward the future, there are several ways to improve farming. Advanced farms that are more efficient and environmentally friendly are an excellent source of affordable food for consumers. Increases in technology also help farming become more efficient in the 21st century. Access to markets that previously were not available will be key in making sure the U.S. continues to be the dominant force in food production for the world market.

In the U.S., we are fortunate to have dedicated farmers who help allow the public to spend their hard-earned money on things other than food. So, to those who claim, "A dollar doesn't go as far as it used to," I say look at the facts in comparison to other world food markets. Then it should be clear how blessed we are.

For more information and statistics, check out the American Farm Bureau Website at www.FB.com or the USDA at www.USDA.gov. For additional information on food affordability, call Kyle Wagner, intern for the agricultural services coordinator at The Lancaster Chamber, (717) 397-3531.

Methane, Water Quality Highlights Of Manure Science Review

WOOSTER, Ohio — Don't hold your nose. This year's Manure Science Review will show you how to minimize odors and water pollution and turn those unwanted residues into profit.

Organized by the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC), the event will take place Aug. 26-27 at the Auglaize County Fairgrounds in Wapakoneta, Ohio, and Aug. 29-30 at the OARDC campus in Wooster. Speakers and programs are the same for both locations.

"Our main goal is to teach farmers how to manage manure correctly using an integrated approach," said Mary Wicks, program coordinator for OARDC's Ohio Composting and Manure Management Program.

"This involves taking advantage of new technologies, minimizing the impact of manure on the environment, improving livestock feeding practices, and building a good relationship with the community."

One of the review's highlights is the presentation "Methane to electricity from livestock manure," by experts Carl Theunis, of Tindale Farm, Wisconsin, and Sharad Deshponde, of residuals management company Synagro.

"Methane generation from manure is becoming increasingly popular, especially in states like Wisconsin and California," Wicks pointed out. "Farmers will learn how to produce methane and how to use it or sell it to companies."

The two-day program also pays much attention to reducing water pollution.

"Drainage control has been a hot topic in the last year," Wicks said. "We will address that particular issue and will also talk about better ways to apply liquid manure to fields in order to improve water quality and control odors."

Va. Holstein Field Day A 'Steamy' Affair

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

MANAKIN-SABOT, Va. — At the Virginia Holstein Field Day on Friday, July 19 at Alvis Farms, dairy folks really got steamed.

However, the ascending vapors were not attributable to a battle of tempers over relevant issues, but rather unrelenting heat that sent the mercury into the upper 90s and was accompanied by a wilting humidity.

Good humor seemed to reign, however. Every time you turned around there another hand was, dipping into either of two troughs for yet another can or bottle of chilled liquid to swallow. Folks were tippling sodas and water like they were going out of style.

"It's supposed to be our fellowship day," reported Margie Ann Dick, Warrenton, the Virginia Holstein Association's venerable secretary-treasurer who has maintained that office for 23 enjoyable years and performs her responsibilities eagerly, regardless of the weather.

"Our members and friends can learn about the different types of dairy operations," Dick said.

The experienced producer has seen farm life change and identifies one of the biggest challenges occurring in the dairy industry and agriculture in general as the loss of its young people. Many farm youths immediately out of school and college are taking advantage of broadening, off-farm opportunities so widely available these days to young adults.

The imaginative family has many options, however, and Dick emphasizes that diversifying can create on-farm opportunities and add supplemental income sources. This is crucial to weathering the challenges facing individual farmers.

"Good management and diversification," she said. "My daughter (Patricia married to Jeff Leonard), is one who believes in educating people when they come."

A corn maze, in their case, is one of the ways diversification has been accomplished. Meanwhile, when tour groups visit, students and private citizens have a high old time in the maze. Through sensory experiences — seeing, hearing, smelling, touching, and tasting — visitors are also introduced to life on a farm.

Exposure to the operation allows kids and adults to discover the source of their food as well as witness how gracious hospitable farm families are.

In the 1950s, when Dick's 4-H career was at its peak, she showed registered Holsteins. Later, as a mother, Dick was determined to expose her children to the same wonderful opportunities that gave their mom such a sense of accomplishment while developing new skills and self-confidence.

"We tried to get two years out of calf consignments," she said, recalling the kids' projects.

It turns out that showing animals is now into the third generation of 4-H membership and Dick couldn't be more gratified that the grandchildren are also walking in her footsteps.

"My problem is I'm always clerking the shows, and I don't get to work with the animals."

Besides the Virginia Sale of Stars coming up in Harrisonburg on Aug. 4 and the Virginia Summer Show, Dick completes some dairy assignment nearly every month of the year. She works at several county fairs besides the Virginia State Fair, in Richmond.

Barbara Wagner, Bridgewater, the Virginia Holstein Association's president, said in the organization, she works closely with a board of directors who represent the state's 10 districts. Wagner said the state's largest concentration of dairy farms is in the counties of Rockingham and Franklin.

John Johnson, from the Farm Service Agency, discussed the ways dairy producers will benefit from the programs covered in the 2002 Farm Bill, including the Disaster Declaration and the Emergency Conservation Program.

He urged the farmers present to take advantage of the Disaster Declaration, although he said there isn't a farmer who wouldn't rather be getting a paycheck for his efforts to support his family and consumers.

Johnson advised producers to also apply for conservation funds to support any fencing work that is necessary as well as to find and protect all water sources.

"Get as much and do as much as you can to avoid further regulation."

George Alvis Jr. makes himself think positive, although he could not be more aware of the 2002 drought's effect on the farm operated with sons Dennis and Randy Alvis and son-in-law Mert Henley.

"So far, knock on wood, we have plenty of water for the cattle," he said.

Crops are another matter. On some 1,350 acres, the parched corn has already passed the point of no return and will end up being cut for silage.

"The corn is pretty well history," Alvis Jr. said. "We will probably have to buy corn if any is available within a 150-mile radius."

Soybeans aren't faring much better, although barley and wheat have been harvested already. As far as grain, the farm is equipped with storage capacity for 330,000 bushels.

From left, the four men who operate Alvis Farms LLC are Dennis Alvis, Randy Alvis, their dad George Alvis Jr. and son-in-law Mert Henley.

Alvis Farms LLC is a Loan Deficiency Program participant and generally finds that taking out a commodity loan when the crop is harvested is advantageous. Therefore, to be in compliance with the requirements, a plan has been developed for every field.

Alvis Jr. believes many farmers will have to rely on some support from the government, given the circumstances of drought-caused crop damage, drying up of water sources, disease, and other challenges.

Normally, the Alvis Farms Holstein herd tops out at 300 head. But, as Alvis Jr. said, "A whole bunch are in the dry field." Only 235 are moved through the double-12 parallel parlor at milking time.

Alvis Jr. said that over time, various tracts of land were acquired until the farm grew to 1,200 acres. Some additional 2,800 acres are rented, of which in total, soybeans are raised on 1,750, corn on 1,350, and wheat, alfalfa and barley on the remaining acres.

Dennis Alvis, a son, is the dairy manager. Son Randy Alvis, generally oversees crops, among other things. Son-in-law Mert Henley does a lot with equipment and maintenance but often the duties of the four men are overlapped.

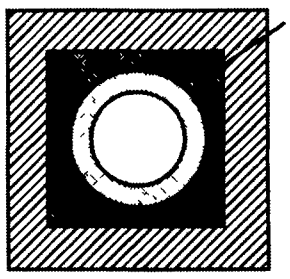
... For New Construction Why Not Examine The "Chimtek Difference."



Chimtek Inner Liners are made of volcanic pumice and high-temperature refractory cements. Its round shape provides even temperature inside flue and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gasses. The volcanic pumice in Chimtek liners adds considerable insulating value.

All three chimneyliner systems distributed by DS Machine Shop are of super design, super performance, and super value. With all their advantages these chimney systems often cost no more than ordinary chimneys. Write or call us for more specific liner information.

BEAT THE HEAT ONE DAY AT A TIME

Travis D. Edwards
Dr. Zhiguo Wu
Dairy and Animal Science Department
Penn State

During heat stress, the maintenance requirement for energy increases because of increased respiration rate, or panting. The extra energy must come from increased feed (nutrient) intake.

However, cows under heat stress actually eat less.

The best way to manage heat stress, as we all know, is to adjust the ration for decreased dry matter intake, increasing potassium and trace mineral levels, and making the TMR more energy dense.

A large amount of potassium can be lost in sweat, even though cows sweat only about 10 percent as much as man. Research has shown that increasing the potassium content of the diet in hot weather from 1.0 percent to 1.5 percent of ration DM increases milk yield. If potassium is increased to 1.5 percent magnesium should be increased to .35 percent. This should overcome the interference potassium has with magnesium absorption.

Including supplemental fat in the diet may be considered as a means of increasing the energy density of the diet. Overcoming low protein intake should be focused on amino acid balance, and rumen-undegradable protein, which should not be below 39 percent of the total ration protein.

Protein, in excess, will require more energy to degrade, and be removed from the body. Consider the amount, source, and content of ration protein carefully. Have your nutritionist review this part of the ration in hot water.

While the above nutritional measures are useful, they may not always be practical. In Pennsylvania, weather seems to be following less and less of a predictable pattern. It seems as though you can mow hay on Monday with a short sleeved shirt and be hauling manure on Wednesday in weather that requires a jacket. So, when we get those two to three days in a row with high temperatures and humidity, try some simple management adjustments in lieu of changing the ration for only a few days.

Feed More Daily Ration At Night

Cows will feel more like eating when it is cool. Often, it does not cool off until the sun goes down. A cow's natural tendency is to eat about every four to six hours. Therefore, you may take advantage of two to three feeding periods in the overnight hours.

For those producers who allow the milk cows access to an exercise lot overnight, a feeder wagon is essential. Fill the wagon with ⅔ of the daily TMR, and leave it on the lot with cows. It is important to use the TMR rather than just forage such as hay or corn silage. If forage and grain are fed separately, cows will drop their forage consumption first.

In speaking with Elvin Garman, a Blair County dairyman who utilizes this tool, he said, "during hot weather, my cows eat two thirds of their TMR overnight from my outside bunk, and barely one third all day in my tunnel ventilated barn. I can also feed refusals from the daytime feeding on the bunk overnight, in addition to the normal nightly portion, and the cows will clean it up. I rarely see an intake drop during hot weather feeding that way."

As a result, he also sees lower drops in production during hot weather, rarely more than two pounds per cow per day. "They simply eat more outside, even compared to when I leave them in the tunnel ventilated barn overnight."

When cows have a chance to cool off at night, they are better able to cope with the high temperatures of the daytime. Feeding in the evening and early morning allows the animal to better dissipate the heat generated by digestion.

Cows should never be unable to access feed. The time a cow spends not eating is milk she's not producing. For those who keep cows in overnight (freestall or tiestall), simply feed more of the TMR in the last mix of the day. This will keep feed provided during the day more fresh, and allow the cows access to more TMR overnight when the temperatures have moderated somewhat.

To further boost intake in that situation, try and get back to the barn one to two hours after evening milking to push feed up. This may also double as a chance to check for heats in hot weather. Cows may not show heats well during periods of high temperatures, they may be more active and showing signs of heat in the evening.

Feed A Yeast Supplement

Feeding extra yeast during hot periods can also help to maintain intake. The yeast will help with the digestion of feedstuffs, increase nutrient utilization, and help keep the cows on feed.

It is relatively easy to handle, and a bag can be kept at the farm for addition to the ration as needed.

Consult your nutritionist on what levels could be added to your ration. Such products may already be in the feed.

Add Water To TMR

During times of heat stress, cows are more likely to sort through feeds, picking out the fines. Again, cows tend to reject forages, and prefer grains in hot weather. This can cause rumen acidosis, lower milk fat test, and further compromise the animal's desire to consume feed.

By adding water, or possibly a liquid molasses product, the TMR will be less likely to separate. Feeding smaller batches throughout the day is another practice that can also reduce the chance of sorting.

The TMR will not have a chance to dry out, and cows have less feed to sort through. During hot weather, try to maintain a 50 percent moisture TMR.

Cool The Dry Cows

Dry cows need attention in hot weather, too, especially close-up cows. These cows are nearing freshening, and intake of nutrients is extremely important.

As a cow nears freshening, dry matter intake naturally decreases. Add to that the effect of heat stress, and intakes can be severely depressed.

Also, stress increases the level of cortisol in the bloodstream. High levels of cortisol may cause early calving or abortions. Keep an eye on intakes for these animals, and strongly consider installing a system to cool them.

Dry cows that are not exposed to heat stress will show a marked increase in milk yield in the first 200 days, when compared to those cows which had been exposed to heat stress. It may not take long to pay for some additional fans over the pre-fresh area.

Water, Water, Water!

Water is always the most important nutrient, and should be monitored year-round. However, it becomes increasingly more important to check water sources as the mercury rises.

During hot weather, algae and fungal growth can occur at rapid rates in and around water sources. Check troughs and bowls often, and keep them clean and free of contamination.

Intake Is Name Of The Game

Feed intake is always a major concern on today's dairy farm. The more TMR a cow consumes, the more milk she can produce.

There are many challenges to intake, but perhaps none are as detrimental as an oppressive, hot, humid, summer day. Maintaining feed intake during these times is critical.

Changing the ration nutrient content for the summer months is always a good idea. Mineral losses because of increased respiration and decreased feed intake can be addressed by ration adjustments. However, when the weather catches you off guard, perhaps the above suggestions can help you beat the heat one day at a time.

Lebanon Youth Show Posts Results

DAVE LEFEVER

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — For Christmas 1995, Holly Miller received a 3-week-old heifer calf from her grandfather, Paul Miller.

This Holstein, Great View Delaware Christmas Belle, went on to create many more festive occasions in the life of the Harrisburg youth — winning awards at a variety of local and state shows, including honorable mention All-Pennsylvania 5-year-old last year.

Now an aged cow, 6½ years old, Christmas Belle isn't showing any signs of fading away in the show ring. She was named supreme champion cow at the Lebanon Fair Youth and Open Dairy Shows last week.

"She's just an outstanding dairy animal," Holstein judge Paul Knight said of the cow, who has been classified two times Excellent-92.

Colored breed judge David Castrogiovanni shared the decision in naming her supreme champion, noting that Christmas Belle looks even better than she did as a young cow.

Miller has been showing Holsteins since she was 9 years old. She graduated this year from Central Dauphin High School and is planning to attend Empire Beauty School in Harrisburg this fall.

According to family members, Miller will continue showing Holsteins throughout the area. Holstein enthusiasts in the Miller family include Holly's parents, Mike and Linda, sister Heidi, and brother Harrison.

Chanelle Horst, Newmanstown, exhibited the reserve champion cow, senior 3-year-old Ju Vindale Jolt Apricot.

Sister and brother Lindsay and Dustin Horning of Turnpike-View Holsteins, Stevens, took 4-H junior grand champion and reserve, respectively.

The Lebanon Fair dairy show and youth Holstein show posted these results:

Wright Joins Pennsylvania Beef Council Team

Blueprint Program Continues

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Scott Wright joined the Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC) as the new Blueprint for Success and Beef Qaulity Assurance Director Aug. 5.

With his position, Wright will work primarily with commonwealth feedlot operators. The program has a twofold objective: to increase the value of fed cattle in Pennsylvania through quality benchmarks and best management practices, and to see the industry grow here by improving profitability.

In addition he will also coordinate the ongoing Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) program. As BQA director Wright will work on getting updating the BQA notebook and "re-contact members that have already been certified and keep them up to date on anything that's happening," he said.

A graduate of the University of Delaware, Wright was previously employed as a herdsman for Delaware Valley College (DVC). While he worked at DVC, he was responsible for the daily management of the college's livestock units, which consist of a beef herd, sheep flock, farrow to finish swine operator and horse reproduction facility. He also assisted in reproductive, health, and nutrition programs for the various species. Prior to that he worked for a year at Wye Angus, Eastern Shore, Maryland, as assistant herdsman.

As he begins, Wright plans to focus on "getting a good grasp on what's been done and what's been successful with the program," he said. First on his agenda is to meet with people already involved and knowledgeable about the Blueprint program.

"Once I've got a grasp I'd like to get out and meet the producers and let them know that everything's back together and we're going to continue to move forward," he said.

"Smithfield and Excel/Taylor both stepped to the plate to provide financial support for the Blueprint program," said Paul Slayton, executive director of PBC. The packers, he said, "felt it was enough of a viable, important program" to partner with the Beef Council and continue the program. It is tentatively scheduled to run for another three years.

In addition to his work experience, Wright is a member of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, Pennsylvania Angus Association and serves on the Alpha Gamma Rho Alumni Association Board of Directors. He also judges county livestock shows in Pennsylvania and neighboring states.

According to Paul Slayton, PBC executive director, the Beef Council had "a lot of interest" and a substantial number of applicants for the position.

Red Angus Releases Year Results

Red Angus has posted a year of setting breed records for memberships, registrations, transfers, and domestic semen sales. Red Angus ha also maintained its lead in semen exports over U.S. beef breeds.

Red Angus' USDA Processed Verified Feeder Calf Certification Program enrolled just under 97,000 head.

Red Angus also released the industry's first reproductive sire summary with genetic predictions. The carcass EPD program also continues to grow with over 320,000 head now described with genetic predictions.

After ranking twelfth in registrations as recently as 1990, Red Angus has become the fifth largest breed in the nation.

New this past year to the Red Angus Association was the addition of Angus Plus to the registry. These cattle are black or red Angus-Brahman derivatives with the goal of minimizing the ear influence in the cattle while still maintaining heat tolerance. These cattle are required to adhere to Red Angus' strict Total Herd Reporting program giving them the most reliable performance data available in the industry.

DAIRY LIQUID FEED SUPPLEMENTS

Why use Liquid Sugar Blends from United Molasses??

- Increase Milk Production.
- Increase Dry Matter Intake.
- Excellent Source of "Rapid" Carbohydrates.
- Less Separation in TMR.
- Reduces Shrink (less dust and fines).
- Increase Microbial Protein Production.
- Less Feed Waste.
- Available with Preservatives to Extend Bunk Life.
- Can be Used as a Fermentation Aid in Silage.
- Great Carrier for Almost All Additives.
- Lower Feed Costs.

HARVESTING GOOD QUALITY CORN SILAGE

Extension Agent — Dairy
Lancaster County

The quality of corn crops can vary a lot from field to field, and from section to section within a field. Variations in maturity can exist because of variable rates of emergence.

Variations in soil moisture, plant populations, and in various kinds of crop damages can result in variable rates of growth, in ear development, and in plant moisture levels. All of these conditions add to the difficulty of determining when is the best time to ensile the crop.

Monitor your fields early and often to determine the condition of the crop, the changes that are taking place, the rapidity of these changes, and the significance of these changes. Is the corn pollinating? To determine this, walk into the center of the field where the heat is generally most intense, because the pollinated ears you see on the outside rows can deceive you. What you observe may dictate which fields should be harvested for grain and which ones should be ensiled.

If the conditions in the field are quite variable, and the sections can not be harvested separately, try to estimate what the average condition of the field is and base your harvesting decisions on that. When trying to estimate the average condition of the crop to be ensiled, think tonnage, not just acreage. For example, if half of the field is short and dry and has the potential to yield only half of what the other section of the field will yield, its impact on the blend of silage to be harvested is only about ⅓, not ½.

Let's clarify this with some numbers and apply them to a two-acre field. Let's assume one acre is at 72 percent moisture and will probably yield 20 tons (T); the other half is at 50 percent moisture and may yield only about 10 T. Now let's do the calculations: 0.72 x 20 = 14.4 T of moisture. 0.5 x 10 = 5.0 T of moisture. 14.4 + 5.0 = 19.4 T of moisture in 30 T of silage. 19.4 / 30 = 64.7 percent moisture in the blend that would be harvested.

Moisture content of the crop at time of harvest is the single most important factor affecting the quality of corn silage. Monitoring the moisture content of the crop in the field and predicting the expected harvest date was the subject of a previous article.

Wet silage (more than 70 percent moisture) requires more time to complete the fermentation process and preserve the silage at a pH of about 4. In other words, the bacteria need to work longer and they need more fuel (sugars) to get the job done. The amount of sugar needed at 75 percent moisture is about 10 percent, compared to 4 percent at 60 percent moisture. If the bacteria run out of energy, the process stalls and the silage is less stable. It stays hotter longer, burning up valuable energy which is needed by the herd.

Protein levels decrease as ammonia production increases. The silage is more acid and contains high levels of acetic acid, which results in better bunk life. However, wet silage results in more seepage, lower dry matter intake, reduced milk production, and less milk yield per ton of silage.

Dry silage (under 55-60 percent moisture) is more difficult to pack well, which can lead to more spoilage problems. It should be chopped finer. Starch and fiber digestibility is generally reduced. The result is lower dry matter intake and less milk production. If the silage is dry and the kernels are hard, rolling the silage at harvest time may help improve digestibility, but results have been variable and hybrids may respond differently. If the silage is too moist when rolled, seepage can increase and the effectiveness of the fiber may be reduced.

Height of cut can also affect silage quality. In a trial conducted in 2001 at the Penn State research farm in Landisville, corn was cut at 6- and 18-inch heights. The higher cut reduced silage yields by 1 ton per acre and lowered nitrate levels slightly. The reduced yield was offset by an increase in energy, starch, and protein levels, and an improvement in NDF digestibility. The net effect was a 177-pound increase in milk per ton of silage DM.

Feeding uncured silage can have a negative impact on milk production. Therefore, strive to have a supply of fermented silage to feed while this year's crop is being harvested and cured.

be available to dairy producers for at least a few more months. It will take USDA time to write the regulations and train local field staff.

So, what do you do when cash flow is tight and the bills are piling up? First, it is very unlikely that most dairy producers will be able to cash-flow their operations from their milk checks because of current low milk prices and reduced milk output from the summer heat. So it is important to visit your lender and arrange for an operating loan. It is likely that your lender will look favorably on the fact that USDA funds under the new Farm Bill will be forthcoming.

What is not recommended is to stop feeding your cows and reduce other inputs into the dairy operation. That will only result in even less milk output, poor body condition, and problems later in the year with reproduction. This will make your financial situation even worse. When milk prices recover, and they look like they already are, your cows won't be in adequate condition to produce milk. This is just my two-cents' worth!

Legislation May Help Protect Manure Prices For Pa. Applicators

STEPHEN SEEBER
Special To Lancaster Farming

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — 1,500 tons of chicken manure and nowhere to put it.

That could be a serious problem for farmers, haulers, and legislators within the next year.

The Heller brothers, Dan and Daryl, along with Rick Haller, have been running the Flintrock poultry farm — with 200,000 chickens in eight barns — at 16 E. Brubaker Valley Road for many years. And every couple months or so, when they clean the waste from the barns, the droppings are conveniently hauled to mushroom country in southeastern Pennsylvania, where growers buy the nitrate-rich chicken waste for use as mushroom fertilizer.

For the most part, it's been an efficient form of waste management, and Flintrock can dispose of up to 1,500 tons of manure in a lucrative manner.

That all changed when, in an effort to keep nitrates out of the Chesapeake Bay, the Maryland legislature enacted the Maryland Manure Transport Project in March 2000. It's an environmental initiative that subsidizes Maryland poultry farmers who relocate their waste to low-nitrate areas. With the subsidies on their side, these farmers are now driving their manure north to Pennsylvania mushroom land and, according to some, undercutting the going rates for chicken waste.

As a result, Pennsylvania farmers, including as many as 400 farms in Lancaster County, can't compete.

Glenn B. Martin, owner of Quality Mulch Products LLC, hauls chicken waste for Flintrock Farms. His business could be hit the hardest.

"To stay competitive, we're going to have to cut our price," he said, explaining that Maryland is currently beating Pennsylvania prices by $4 a ton.

Poultry manure hauling comprises about 60 percent of Martin's business, but if the playing field doesn't level soon, he will have to downsize his fleet and possibly put drivers out of work. Recently he bought 15 truckloads of chicken manure from Flintrock. This time, he will be able to sell it to mushroom farms in Chester County. But if prices continue to drop and Maryland continues its aggressive approach, this could be one of the last pick-ups at the Elizabeth Township farm.

As haulers contemplate their futures, the long-term problem for large chicken farms like Flintrock will be in finding a new place to take the waste.

Dan Heller, Flintrock president, said land application options are limited and storage facilities can only hold about a year's-worth of manure.

"You can only build a building so big," he said. "This could definitely impact Lancaster's nutrient management plans."

It now appears the only recourse is legislation, recently proposed by State Representative Thomas Creighton (R-37), which would earmark $3 million out of the DEP budget to put Pennsylvania and Maryland farmers on the same page.

"We need to duplicate the Maryland subsidies," Creighton said during a recent meeting at Flintrock. "We need to negate the Maryland advantage. This legislation could come in at $3 million per year, but it could come out of the DEP (Department of Environmental Protection) budget, since DEP is concerned with local nitrate levels."

Tariffs on Maryland haulers, Creighton explained, would only impede interstate commerce and hurt the Pennsylvania economy.

With the backing of local farmers and manure haulers, Creighton will put out a call for cosponsors in the state House. If all goes as planned, a bill that could stop the dumping of out-of-state manure will be introduced at the September session of the House of Representatives.

And if the House shares Creighton's urgency, farms such as Flintrock and haulers such as Glenn Martin may be back in business.

Northeast Milk Marketing Order To Consider Changes

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced a public hearing to consider changes to the Northeast Federal milk marketing order. The hearing will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Sept. 10 at the Embassy Suites Hotel Alexandria, 1900 Diagonal Road, Alexandria, VA 22314.

Proposals will include establishing marketwide service payments to offset the costs of balancing the market's Class I needs, establishing year-round shipping standards for supply plant pool qualification, establishing a standard that at least two-days' milk production of a dairy farmer be physically received at a pool plant before the balance of production is eligible for diversion, establishing limits on the amount of milk that a pool plant may divert, eliminating limits on the amount of milk that a pool plant may divert, eliminating the "split plant" feature for pool supply plants, and making minor changes to reporting and payment dates.

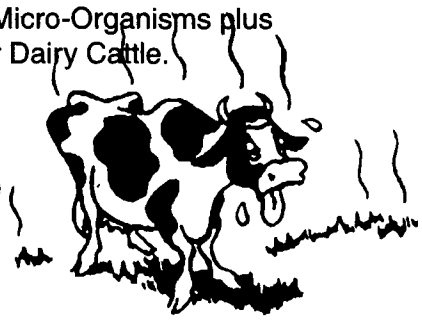
DAIRY STRESS PAK

A Source of Live (viable) Naturally-Occuring Micro-Organisms plus Vitamins, Niacin & Amino Acid Complexes for Dairy Cattle.



Some benefits of feeding Dairy Stress Pak:

- Increases fiber digestion
- Helps reduce grain passage in manure
- Increases total rumen bacteria
- Helps improve immune system
- Appetite stimulant
- Helps to lower SCC
- Helps increase milk fat
- Helps reduce incidence of abortions and stillbirths
- Helps reduce incidence of ketosis

Best times to feed Dairy Stress Pak:

- Early lactation
- Anytime feed intake is low
- When poor forage is being fed
- Any Stress period like freshening, breeding, or heat stress

Southwest Youth Exhibitors Qualify For Harrisburg In September

KRISTIN RUSSELL
Blair Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.)— Youth from six central Pennsylvania county 4-H programs and six FFA chapters exhibited their dairy project animals before judge Mary Shank Creek of Hagerstown, Md. at the Southwest District Junior Dairy Show here recently. All blue ribbon winners are eligible to show at the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show in Harrisburg in September. The showmanship judge for the event was Jeremy Daubert of Mount Joy.

Sisters Erin and Rebecca Shaw of Blair County exhibited reserve and junior champion Holsteins at the Southwest District Junior Dairy Show.

In the Ayrshire show, Paul Replogle of Blair County won junior champion honors, while Amanda Brant of Huntingdon County took home the reserve junior champion rosette. In the milking classes, Shanda Pheasant of Blair County exhibited the top Ayrshire cow, winning grand champion and Jason Mowry of Bedford County won reserve grand champion.

Jenna Smith of Blair County won junior champion honors in the Brown Swiss show, while John Grove III of Huntingdon County claimed reserve junior champion. In the senior division, it was Nick Burket of Blair County winning grand champion, reserve grand champion and the best bred and owned animal of the breed.

Bedford County's Kendy Gable took home the junior champion honors in the Guernsey show with Chad Yoder of Blair County winning reserve junior champion. Justin Kauffman of Somerset County was awarded grand champion, while James Oldham of Bedford County had reserve grand champion. The best bred and owned Guernsey award was given to Shareena Hershberger of Bedford County and the Lori Ann Clark showmanship award was presented to Kendy Gable.

In the Jersey show, Blair County showmen Lee Bailey and Garrett Stonerook claimed the junior and reserve junior champion honors respectively. Stonerook also exhibited the grand champion Jersey cow, with reserve champion honors going to Josten Hardy, also of Blair County. Stonerook's Champion was also the best owned and bred cow of the Jersey show.

In a large Holstein show, it was sisters Rebecca and Erin Shaw of Blair County that came out on top with junior and reserve junior champion exhibits. Kaitlyn Foor of Bedford County won the grand champion rosette while Carrie Peachey of Huntingdon County was awarded reserve grand champion of the Holstein breed. The best bred and owned animal was exhibited by Cindi Mearkle of Bedford County.

Dylan Pheasant of Blair County swept the junior division of the Milking Shorthorn show winning rosettes for junior and reserve junior champion. In the mature cow divisions, it was Edna Schilling of Blair County with grand champion. Judge Creek favored the Junior Champion owned by Pheasant for reserve grand champion of the Milking Shorthorn show. This entry was also named the best bred and owned of the Milking Shorthorn show.

In a smaller, but very competitive Red and White show, Samuel Mohr of Bedford County claimed the junior champion rosette, while Anthony Sharp of Somerset County won the title of reserve junior champion. It was all Huntingdon County for grand and reserve grand champion, with Charann Foster winning grand and Brittany Jo Myers coming in with reserve honors. Samuel Mohr's calf was selected as the best bred and owned of the Red and White show.

NorthEast Organic Field Day Set

PENN YAN, N.Y. — North-East Organic Network will host a field day Aug. 14 at one of the Northeast region's largest organic cash grain farms.

Klaas and Mary-Howell Martens grow 1,300 acres of organic grain along with processing vegetables on the western slope of Seneca Lake near Penn Yan, N.Y. They and their neighbors share expertise to grow nearly 8,000 acres of certified organic grain production in Yates County. The Martens also started a value-added feed mill and seed cleaning business to process area organically grown crops and increase markets.

The program will feature talks by organic farmers explaining how they grow their crops without chemical inputs, and by university researchers who will demonstrate the principles behind the results. The group will tour farm fields for a first hand look at large scale organic grain production. Effective weed cultivation equipment and methods plus in-field soil health appraisal techniques will be demonstrated.

Participants will meet at the Yates County Fairgrounds, on Old Rt. 14A just south of the village of Penn Yan, at 9:30 a.m. The morning program will include background information, a trade show, and time to meet the farmers and representatives of supporting organic farm businesses. After lunch (bring your own or purchase on site), tour buses will take us to field stops at the Martens' and neighboring farms.

There will be a $15 fee for the field day. Pre-registration is required. Call (607) 255-5439 to register.

The field day is hosted by the Northeast Organic Network (NEON), New York Certified Organic (NYCO), and The Northeast Organic Farming Association of New York (NOFA-NY). Cornell Cooperative Extension is also sponsoring the event.

DEC pesticide credits will be available for those who wish them.

For more information, go to www.neon.cornell.edu or call: Brian Caldwell, NOFA-NY Farm Education Coordinator at (607) 564-1060 or Steve Gilman, NEON Project Director at (518) 583-4613.

Gene Snyder, 11, Reading, took home supreme champion ram and supreme champion ewe honors at Reading Fair's Sheep Show, in addition to winning grand champion market lamb. Vegetable, Fruit Field Day Aug. 19

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The 2002 Pennsylvania Vegetable, Small Fruit, and Tree Fruit Field Day is scheduled Aug. 19 here. It will be here at Penn State's Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center. The event is being sponsored jointly by Penn State University's College of Agricultural Sciences, the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, and the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania. Growers will have the opportunity to see first-hand the research projects being conducted by Penn State researchers at the Research Center.

The itinerary is:

• 8 a.m. — Registration at the Horticulture Farm - Coffee and donuts will available.

Exhibitors — The following exhibitors have signed up to date:

Binkley and Hurst Brothers Inc.
Imants.
Haygrove Tunnels
Ag Chem Equipment
Penns Creek Welding
BDi Machinery
Johnny's Selected Seeds

• 9 a.m. — Tour of Vegetable and Small Fruit Horticulture and Entomology Research Plots Researchers and support staff will be in the field to answer questions and comment about their current research.

• 12:30 p.m. — Lunch A hearty sandwich accompanied by chips, beverage will be provided.

• 1:30 p.m. — Demonstrations — Various equipment demonstrations are planned.

Tour of Tree Fruit Research Plots — Dr. Rob Crassweller and Mr. Don Smith will lead tours of their current research plots in apple rootstock trials, training system trials, national apple variety trials and replant problems.

Exhibitors — See list above.

Vegetable Variety Trials — Visitors may walk through these plots on their own.

• 3:30 p.m. — Tour of Vegetable Plant Pathology Research Plots — Dr. MacNab will be in the field to answer questions and comment about his current research.

• 4:30 p.m. — Adjourn

To preregister, contact the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association at (717) 694-3596 or wt.pvga@tricountyi.net. or contact the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania at (717) 677-4184 or shap@supernet.com. Registration is $13 per person to cover the costs of lunch, morning and afternoon refreshments, and other costs before Aug. 12. Late registrants will be charged an extra $5. Children under 16 will be charged $10 registration. Preregistration is important to obtain good estimates of the food needed. Registrations without lunch will be $5.

The field day will be headquartered at the Horticulture Farm of the Russell Larson Agricultural Research Center, located at Rockspring on Rt. 45 about 11 miles west of State College between Pine Grove Mills and Spruce Creek. The Horticulture Farm is just east of the Ag Progress Days site.

State Lifts Ban

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Ag Secretary Sam Hayes recently noted, "The rapidly spreading avian influenza outbreak this spring in Virginia caused great concern for the Pennsylvania poultry industry. One of the measures instituted to help the Pennsylvania industry was a ban of poultry and poultry products at Pennsylvania fairs.

"The current situation in Virginia shows no new cases have been reported since early July. Considering this information and the data collected by the Department of Agriculture in surveillance activities, I am lifting the ban on poultry and poultry products at Pennsylvania fairs. This action is effective immediately.

"Please keep in mind that avian influenza is a highly contagious disease and biosecurity protocols should still be practiced with a high level of vigilance and diligence."

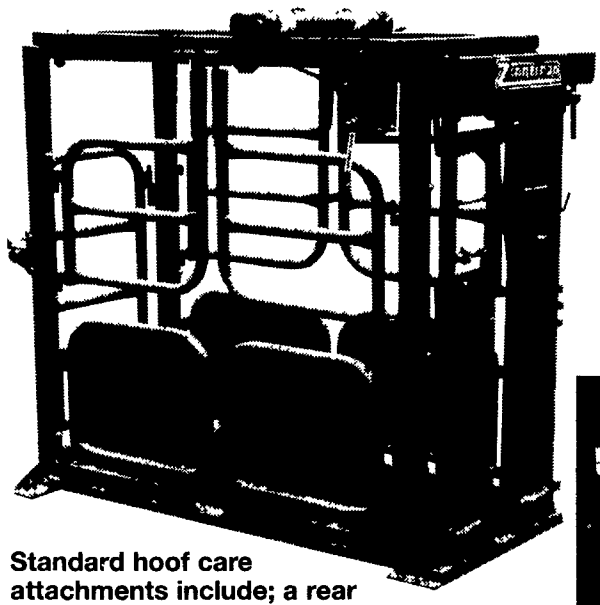
Combination Hoof Care/Vet Chute

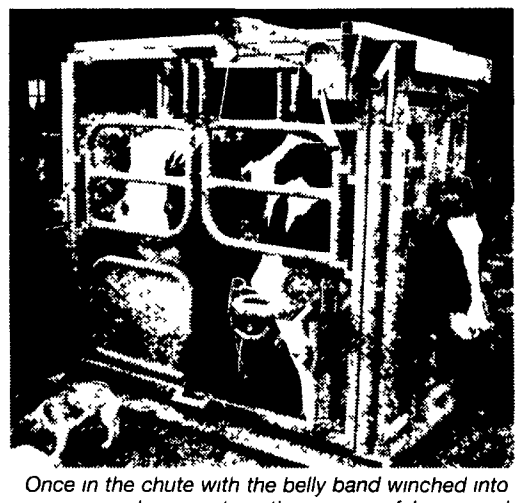


This highly versatile equipment can be used to secure a cow safely and efficiently for foot care or veterinary services.

Side panels and gates easily replace hoof care accessories to create a vet chute where almost any common vet procedure can be performed.

Standard hoof care attachments include; a rear splatter board, rear foot winch, two front foot winches and a full width belly band and winch to lift the animals weight off their feet. All winches have heavy duty friction brakes providing constant, positive holding action.

ALL STEEL PARTS ARE POWDER COATED USING THE PBZ FIVE-STEP PROCESS.



Once in the chute with the belly band winched into working position, the cow is safely secured for foot treatment legitimacy to an illegitimate and often illegally used product. MPC does not have Generally Regarded As Safe (GRAS) status with the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). Putting tariffs on illegal MPC could be compared to putting tariffs on marijuana that exceed import averages for the past three years.

The second major fallacy is that Mexico is exempt from tariff rate quota for MPC. This creates a huge loophole. In this age of multi transnational shipments, Mexico could become a MPC broker and a major exporter of MPC to the U.S. Of course, if the push for free trade with Australia and New Zealand becomes reality, then, certainly, they will be exempt from tariff rate quotas for MPC.

Third, it would only put tariffs on MPC imports that exceed the past three years average.

Fourth, the U.S. would be compelled to compensate dairy exporting nations for lost income.

Our dairy "leaders," such as National Milk Producer Federation's (NMPF's) very own Chris Galen, give the appearance of being concerned about compensating other countries for their losses while they do little more than grandstanding to help our own nation's dairy farmers.

H.R. 1786 is a very dangerous and counterproductive approach to the MPC issue. It must be defeated. Our goal is to keep MPC out all together, not legitimize it.

International Dairy Foods Association (IDFA) and a large number of food manufacturers oppose H.R. 1786 for very different reasons. They whine that its passage would drive up ingredient cost and the cost to consumers for their products.

Others wring their hands at the ballooning dairy stockpiles. Clearly, when one looks at the farm milk price versus the consumer price index for dairy products, there is no retail price signal that would lower stockpiles. We have to rely on bad weather, disease, and fewer farmers to lower excess dairy stockpiles, which are caused by imports in the first place.

The free market system has been short-circuited by the greedy food barons. IDFA's argument is pure poppycock.

— Gerald Carlin
Meshoppen

Editor:

In his letter to the editor (Farm Forum 8/3/02), Progressive Agriculture General Manager Arden Tewksbury makes some very valid points. Yes, the raw milk prices are at the same level that they were in the late '70s, but the prices we dairy farmers pay for our inputs — seed, fertilizer, supplies, and services — are not! They continue to go up!

Some observers discuss a milk "surplus problem." The "surplus" is actually created not by our own dairy farmers' domestic production (which is less than our nation's domestic usage), but by the importation of dairy products brought into this country through legal loopholes. That is precisely why Congressman Steve LaTourette (R-OH) is seeking an investigation into these dairy issues, and this is why our senators and congressmen should "jump right into this battle" as Mr. Tewksbury suggests. This importation of Milk Protein Concentrate (MPC) and the inaction by Congress is nothing short of an economic pogrom against American dairy farmers in all regions.

Robert Schubert, in an article in Cropchoice, reports that DFA and Land O'Lakes are utilizing imported MPCs. I thought the co-ops were supposed to help dairy farmers maintain a reasonable price for the milk we produce, not undercut us with imports. The sad fact is that until we dairy farmers get angry enough to force the co-ops to do what they should be doing, nothing good is going to happen to dairy farmers.

Remember the Maryland-Virginia Cooperative incident when some dairy farmers raised a ruckus about their co-op's plans to merge with Land O'Lakes? It may have been unpleasant, but it's that kind of action that must be taken to force these co-ops to do what they should.

If farmers cannot hold their co-ops accountable to their membership's needs, then the farmers should form new co-ops.

Farmers, don't put your heads down and hope someone else will do it. It's completely up to you!

Central Susquehanna Beef Producers Meeting Aug. 15

WATSONTOWN (Northumberland Co.) — Gary Werner will host Central Susquehanna area beef producers on his farm here Thursday, Aug. 15, at 6:30 p.m.

Werner will give a tour of his feedlot and discuss cattle handling facility design and behavioral principles.

Dave Wolfgang, Penn State extension veterinarian, and John Comerford, extension beef specialist, will talk about receiving programs for feeder cattle and genetic implications on beef quality.

Werner's farm is north of the town of Dewart. From Rt. 405 about 1.5 miles north of Dewart, turn right on Musser Lane to the second farm on right.

For more information and to register, call extension agent Dave Hartman at (570) 784-6660.

Oak Grove Farms Put Stars On Pennsylvania Produce

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

MECHANICSBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Hard work, abundant energy, and enjoyment go hand in hand for the Lebo family, who operate a booming produce market at Oak Grove Farms with 220 acres in produce.

The farm business started 38 years ago with Paul Lebo and his brother Earl going door-to-door with eggs and a little produce. Eventually they erected a produce stand on the poultry farm. Paul and his wife had three children who grew up and gave the business a whole new look.

Dwayne and his brother Brian purchased the farm and business four years ago. Each has his own area of expertise: Dwayne oversees the fieldwork and trucks, and Brian delivers the produce to surrounding areas. Their younger sister, Linette, is not a business partner but is in charge of the store and cut-your-own flower operation.

Although the thriving farm market has a constant flow of customers, the majority of the produce is marketed wholesale.

Just because the elder Lebos consider themselves "retired," certainly doesn't mean they are. Dad Lebo heads up the sales and does much of the tractor work. Mom Lebo weekly bakes 50-75 loaves of bread, 100 pies, and several hundred whoopie pies and cookies to sell in the bakery. She also makes jams and jellies throughout the season using fresh produce or that she has frozen to use later.

Ask each family member what he or she enjoys most about growing and selling produce, and each one answers similarly: "Everything. I like the seasonal change with its vast differences — I look forward to each one," said Dwayne.

"Oak Grove puts stars on Pennsylvania produce," said a customer.

A wide selection of in-season produce is attractively displayed in the store.

"We started with a little stand and never stopped growing. We just kept adding on," Dwayne said of the sprawling buildings, which include a 40X80-feet produce store, several sheds, and a cooler.

When they say they grow their own produce, they really mean that.

"We start our own produce from seeds. We don't buy seedlings — that way we're not relying on someone else. It's my fault if things don't work out," Dwayne said.

That means springtime is busy with planting, summer and fall with harvesting, and winter months are used to build, weld, fix, and plan.

Dwayne's wife Jennifer takes care of the bookwork, and their three sons like to help their dad.

In the last few weeks, Oak Groves sold an average 60 crates of corn daily.

"We saw this opportunity to expand, so we did," Dwayne said. "The greenhouses and country market helped us grow. The hardest part is lots of hours required to get everything done. We're a family business, so we're always involved."

Employees include 12 Mexican seasonal workers, eight high school students, and three full-time employees.

The market is closed Sunday. "But Monday always has so much to do to make up for the time off," Dwayne said.

"Everything revolves around customers," Linette said. She foresaw the potential in starting a pick-your-own flower garden in 1999. It was so successful that every year they expanded a bit more.

Before that, Dwayne and his wife had a flower patch that they grew for dried flowers and sold at craft shows, for which they no longer have time. Although they still grow some flowers for drying, the purpose is to enable the customers to pick their own instead of drying the flowers for them.

In the fall, customers can dig their own mums and pick their own squash, gourds, Indian corn, and other fall-related produce.

"You ought to see this place about five or six in the evening," a customer said. "Women on the way home from work stop in high heels to pick fresh flowers for their tables."

Linette said, the charge to cut fresh flowers is $3.50 per cup, which customers are allowed to fill as full as desired with whatever variety is growing.

Five wells on the farm enable them to irrigate the crops. Most is done with drip irrigation under plastic but some is overhead.

"Drip irrigation saves water and is less labor to maintain after it is set up," Dwayne said. "Irrigation is a big expense. Last year the corn prices did not support water usage, but this year prices are higher because corn is scarce. Farms that didn't irrigate are asking us for corn. We have enough for us, but there's no surplus," Dwayne said.

"When sales don't match demand, it's stressful," Dwayne said. "We have learned to say 'no' to keep from cutting our own throats."

Dwayne said their business fills in gaps by buying some produce from Cumberland Valley Produce Auction. "But we don't buy much in. We plant to have produce all season long. We know what we need to plant and when we need it. If we tell stores we're going to have produce for them — we must—no matter what."

Deer is a problem and birds which can eat into the crop supply.

Running such a large operation is a continual educational experience. "We never stop learning," Dwayne said.

Delivery requires using four bed trucks and renting two 24-feet trucks for several months during harvest.

"We ship from the field the day it's picked," Dwayne said.

As she was checking out customers, Linette said, "We may need to build a bigger store and add an additional greenhouse."

A customer interrupted, "Stay the way you are — I love you just the way you are. Don't ruin it."

Finding that balance is no easy feat for a family who wants to keep producing and selling the best. But the Lebos said they are having fun, even though it's hard work.

The store, located just off Williamsgrove Road on Fisher Road, Mechanicsburg, is open year-round, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday from 8 a.m.-6 p.m.

National Farmers' Market Week Aug. 4-10 — recognizes 3,000 farmers markets that operate seasonally or year-round. One of these is Oak Grove Farms, a family business with 220 acres in produce grown for their farm market and wholesale business. From left are Dwayne Lebo, who oversees the growing operation, his sister Linette in charge of the store and greenhouses, and his mother who keeps the home bakery thriving. His dad, Paul, is in charge of wholesale sales and does a lot of the on-farm tractor work, and a brother Brian is in charge of route deliveries.

"Oak Grove puts stars on Pennsylvania produce," said a customer.

A pick-your-own flower operation blooms with colorful, seasonal choices that has proven to be a great accent to the farmers' market.

Preserving Foods With Grandma's Recipes

This is the time of year when vegetables are plentiful and our memories remind us of Grandma's or Mom's kitchens, watching her carefully chop, mix, and jar vegetables for the winter dinners. Many Moms canned and/or pickled vegetables, as freezers were not as readily available.

Research now show us that products processed in a water bath, large pot of boiling water, at least one inch above the tops of the jars, need to be at least a pH of 4.6 or lower. Most kitchens are not equipped with a pH meter; therefore, folks now need to follow tested recipes which have been tested with a pH meter.

Why do we need to follow tested recipes? Because today's pathogens, harmful bacteria, viruses or molds, can survive in jars which have been processed in a water bath and do not have sufficient ingredients in them to lower the pH to lower that 4.6.

What ingredients lower food's pH level? Vinegar and lemon juice are two examples. Non acidic foods like onions, peppers and cauliflower can raise the pH. Spices generally do not affect the pH of a canned food item.

Here are other cautions against using recipes which are not tested:

Open Kettle Canning (filling boiling food into sterilized jars, and no further processing) is not a recommended practice as the air in the headspace can contain mold and bacteria that can cause spoilage. Processing kills mold spores.

Oven Canning: This is a very dangerous practice, do not do! Canning jars are designed to withstand boiling water temperatures. Glass is sensitive to sudden temperature changes. Hot air is not as efficient in heat treating foods as steam or boiling water. These jars can explode and foods are often under processed. Clostridium botulinum bacteria are not destroyed in the oven.

Tightening jar lids after processing: Do not adjust two-piece lids after removing from the canner. This practice is a carryover from using zinc lids and jar rubbers. Today's two-piece lids should not be adjusted.

Boiling jar lids 5 minutes before using: Follow directions on box. Most two-piece lids need only to be heated to 180 - Do Not Boil. It can cause damage in the lid's sealing ability.

Do not top jams and jellies with paraffin. Instead use canning jars and new two-piece lids. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Paraffin is temperature sensitive and often breaks loose from the edge of a jar resulting in mold formation on jam/jellies. Mold can produce mycotoxins in foods which may be carcinogens (cancer causing agents). Water bath processing will sterilize the headspace and kill mold spores.

Fresh summer fruits and vegetables are meant to be enjoyed for their flavor, nutrient value and fiber. Keep them safe if you choose to preserve your foods.

For tested recipes for home canning, you may call your local Penn State Coop Extension office or, you may visit the Food Science Department web site at: http://foodsafety.cas.psu.edu/.

Dunkin' Donuts Introduces Breakfast Steak Sandwich

DENVER, Colo. — Beef producers will be breaking into the breakfast steak sandwich market by partnering with Dunkin' Donuts on a promotion to introduce a Steak, Egg and Cheese breakfast sandwich.

The Dunkin' Donuts Steak, Egg and Cheese sandwich is made with a sandwich-style, marinated steak patty — a mix of chuck, round and sirloin — served with an egg and slice of American cheese on a bagel. The sandwich will be available at breakfast or anytime.

Within the beef industry, this foodservice program is being coordinated on behalf of the Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB) and state beef councils by the National Cattleman's Beef Association (NCBA). The beef industry is providing funding to augment the cost of producing promotional materials and to extend media coverage.

The eight-week promotion starting August 15 includes dedicated television advertising spots and in-store point of purchase. Promotional materials will carry the Beef Check logo.

"The new Steak, Egg and Cheese Sandwich helps establish steak as a breakfast item," said Oklahoma beef producer Lisa Hefner, chairman of the CBB/NCBA Joint Foodservice Committee. "Through the beef checkoff, producers are breaking new ground in a whole new segment of dining out."

The Steak, Egg and Cheese sandwich will be a permanent addition to the Dunkin' Donuts breakfast sandwich family at participating shops in New England on August 15 and nationwide this fall. The sandwich is available for a recommended retail price of $2.69.

On Being a Farm Wife

Water.

Covering for much of Earth's surface. Basic commodity of production and manufacturing industries. Gourmet beverage, bottled in classy containers, for upscale consumers.

Water. Source of life.

And, in our case, source of life and livelihood. Because everything we do, as farmers, is heavily dependent on water arriving with reasonable regularity, in worthwhile amounts, in due season.

Which, in our particular slice of the region, has not happened. Droughts are becoming way too familiar, stealthy disasters lacking the dramatic twist of a tornado, the busting-gusts of a hurricane, or the nerve-shattering, teeth-chattering, knock-your-socks-off effect of an earthquake.

As natural disasters go, our area is relatively fortunate. Still, watching the water table drop, inch by inch, as registered by the appearance of the bottoms of several of farm ponds, once teeming with fish and water lilies, has a slow, gripping, depressive effect.

Of greater concern than fish losses, however, is watching corn stalks curl, day after day, soybean rows remain barren as beanseeds sprout, then shrivel, due to lack of moisture. And it grips you right in the gut to watch cows nudge their noses and suck at water fountains which simply cannot deliver enough water to quench their thirst on a 95-degree, mid-summer scorching afternoon.

We have no method of delivery of water to crops drying up before a few recent, timely showers, and no supply of it even if a delivery system could be had. But, for the cows, we could improvise. And so, a 1,000-gallon tank, normally used by the Farmer as a water reserve during planting season, became pressed into service twice a day to deliver supplemental water to our shrinking water supply which was no longer adequate.

Laundry could be done, a load every other day or so, in the wee hours of the morning when the cows were drinking less. Plants were watered with the daily emptying of calf buckets, as well as some salvaged through kitchen use. The car could be washed at the neighborhood carwash — or stay dirty. And the garden could survive on whatever nature provided and I supplemented with a bucket in each hand on every trip.

But the cows must drink. The hotter and more humid it gets, the thirstier it makes the cows. Our milking system must, by law and sanitation rules, be washed twice daily, after every milking.

We must have water. And ours was drying up.

So it was with a mixture of relief and trepidation that we watched the lumbering well-drilling rig back into the yard one morning a few weeks ago. Would there be water? How deep would we have to go? How long would it take? And, what would be the end result?

Well-drilling was new turf for us, so the activity was fascinating. Pounding a large rock-chewing drill down through the ground is a noisy process, competing with the roar of the large fans blasting away in the dairy barn on one of July's hottest, harshest, most humid afternoons. The rig hammered away into late afternoon, then early evening, poking and probing into the farm's innermost, underground secrets. What would it find?

Less than 24 hours later, the drill bit returned from underground bedrock, the hammering machine stilled — and the back yard oozed with moisture and clay deposit. And we had been blessed with a cold, tasty and very adequate flow of sustenance for our thirsty girls.

In celebration, I washed three loads of laundry — in the middle of a single day. And filled the birdbath with the hose, rather than a gallon jug lugged from the kitchen sink.

And felt a bit guilty.

Because, the water flowing to our cows may have earlier been supplying someone else's. Or their horses, or pigs, or chickens. Or worse, someone else's family. Just a few miles from the farm, in both directions, new houses rise almost by the day. A new shopping and commerce center is under construction not far away. All these uses tap into the water supplies, which are not infinite and depend on regular and adequate rainfall.

With each glance out the kitchen window to the wellcap and reserve water tank, I feel compelled to offer thanks for water — water flowing to thirsty cows and water filling household faucets.

And that little white pipe poking up out of the ground has become a vivid reminder not to take anything for granted.

Cottony Maple Scale And Its Management

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — It looks like your maple tree has just formed cotton balls on its branches, but what you are really seeing is the egg sacs of the cottony maple scale. The cottony maple scale, Pulvinaria innumerabilis, is a highly modified insect pest that commonly attacks silver and red maples but can populate on other species of maple, honey and black locust, white ash, euonymus, oak, boxelder, dogwood, hackberry, sycamore, beech, elm, and poplar.

Normally, this scale is a mere curiosity and nuisance. The white egg sacs easily attract attention and the developing scales produce honeydew. Honeydew is the excess water and sugar excreted by many plant sap-feeding insects. When honeydew collects on leaves and branches, bees, wasps and ants are attracted to the area. If the honeydew is allowed to remain, molds called "sooty fungus" grow on the material, turning the surface a gray-black color. This can cause a blackened appearance to leaves, twigs, branches, and other substrates beneath an infested host plant.

Occasionally, heavy outbreaks of this scale occur, usually on weakened or stressed trees. Severely infested trees appear as though they were covered with a string of popcorn. These outbreaks can cause the death of numerous small branches and occasionally the death of the tree.

Like most scale insects, the adults and the eggs, are not susceptible to pesticides and the anxious tree owner must wait until the correct time for management. This occurs in mid-June to mid-July when the scale is in its crawler stage. Crawlers may be managed with an application of a registered insecticide applied in late June and repeated according to label directions in early July.

Beware, certain insecticides may cause damage to soft maples: do not apply insecticidal soap to Japanese maples. Always read the label before application. For more information, contact the Penn State Cooperative extension in your county.

Tioga County Farm-City Ideas Published Nationwide

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — Tioga County, Pennsylvania is being given national attention through the National Farm-City Council publication entitled "Farm-City Connection." This newsletter can be viewed from the National Farm-City Council's Website at www.farm-city.org.

Sherri Butters, chairperson of the 2002 Farm-City Day in Tioga County, has written detailed pages of tips, tools, and ideas for other counties to use in establishing a Farm-City program. This information along with ideas from several other states has been combined into a 32-page book entitled "Tips, Tools, and Ideas for Organizing a Successful, Local Farm-City Program.

The National Council is making this booklet available in pdf format for viewing and printing by individuals and/or organizations as they need. The book, including pictures, has been put up in 21 sections ranging from "how to start" to "after its over." Each section can be printed separately allowing for persons to pick and choose items of interest.

Butters has previously made copies of this information available to Farm-City groups in Lycoming County, as well as in Tompkins and Steuben counties, N.Y. Eugene A. Field, co-chairman of the Lycoming County Farm-City Committee states: "The how-to narratives dealing with everything from wagon tours to food services, from signs to promotional materials, and from display sites to safety considerations were super. Thanks to you, we did not have to re-invent the wheel." Field added: "The Lycoming County Farm-City Day Committee strongly supports the idea of developing an instruction manual or guide for the implementation of Farm-City Day events."

Butters states: "These ideas came from several years of team effort by countless individuals. Farm-City Day is definitely a committee project and takes many volunteers to be successful. The ideas and tips in this free booklet should help any organization planning an event (primarily outdoors), which is open to the public."

Individuals or groups interested in further information should contact the National Farm-City Council, Inc. at www.farmcity.org. Butters currently serves as a member of the board of directors for the National Farm-City Council, Inc. She is the county executive director for the Tioga County Farm Service Agency located at 29 East Avenue, Wellsboro, Pa.

Mosholder, Pennwood Farms Win In Open Show

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) Matt Mosholder of Rockwood won grand champion, and Pennwood Farms in Berlin won reserve at the Somerset County Holstein Show, an open show Wednesday, July 10, at the Somerset County Fairgrounds.

Mosholder also won supreme champion of the Somerset County Junior Dairy Show, on Tuesday, July 9, the day before the Holstein show, at the fairgrounds.

With his 5-year-old cow, "GCS Leader Buckwheat," Mosholder took top honors at the Holstein show.

He is the son of Harry and Donna Mosholder of Rockwood. Matt is a junior student at Penn State, majoring in dairy systems and management.

In the final rounds of the Holstein show, Mosholder also won senior champion. There were about 140 entries in the show, which began at about 6:30 p.m. and lasted until 10:30 p.m.

Mosholder also won grand champion and senior champion in the junior show with "GCS Lader Buckwheat." He won reserve senior champion and reserve grand champion with a 3-year-old cow, "Locker-Lane Lin Georgia-ET," the same cow he won with at the junior dairy show, which only included FFA and 4-H members on Tuesday.

Reserve senior champion of the show went to Pennwood Farms for a 4-year-old "Bonnievale Leader Lisa," shown by Duane Stoltzfus, part owner of the farms.

Pennwood Farms also won reserve senior champion with "Bonnievale" as well as premier breeder and premier exhibitor.

In the calf show's junior division, junior champion went to K. Alec Hillegass of Berlin with his fall yearling, "Hillmont RM Twink."

In the senior division of the junior show, Amber Kling of Grantsville, Md., won junior champion with her winter calf named "Pavie Lady R Marker Cecilia-ET."

K. Alec Hillegass of Berlin won reserve junior champion in the senior division with his fall yearling.

Show judge was John Burket of Blair County.

Matt Mosholder of Rockwood won grand champion during the Somerset County Holstein Show, Wednesday, July 10, at the Somerset County Fairgrounds in Meyersdale. With him is show judge John Burket of Blair County. This show, in conjunction with the Somerset County Junior Dairy Show, is an open show for the Holstein breed only.

Duane Stoltzfus of Berlin, representing Pennwood Farms, Berlin, won reserve grand champion during the Somerset County Holstein Show. Berlin also won reserve senior champion, premier breeder, and premier exhibitor in the open show.

Eastern Regional Junior Swine Show Planned For KILE

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — The National Junior Swine Association (NJSA) will conduct its second-annual eastern regional show Oct. 4-6 at the Farm Show Complex during the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

Open to all youth swine enthusiasts, the eastern regional will consist of a purebred gilt show, a showmanship contest and a skillathon. Points will be awarded to participants in these three events and compiled toward a sweepstakes contest where awards will be given to the top five contestants in each age division. The age divisions are as follows: Novice (8 and under); Junior (9-12); Intermediate (13-16) and Senior (17-21). Thousands of dollars will be given away in awards and premiums throughout the weekend.

Registration and check-in for the gilt show, showmanship contest and skillathon is scheduled for 5-9 p.m., Friday, Oct. 4. All junior gilts must be in place by 9 p.m. Friday. The skillathon will be from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Oct. 5. The showmanship contest will take place on Saturday at 1 p.m., followed by the purebred gilt show. Jim Gibson, Panora, Iowa, will be evaluating the showmanship contest and gilt show entries.

The sweepstakes awards will be presented on Sunday, Oct. 6, at 7:30 a.m.; prior to the KILE barrow show.

Preregistration is required for all gilt show entries. Entries are due Aug. 30 at the NSR office. Preregistration is not required for the skillathon, so all interested youth are welcome to participate. A $5 entry fee will be charged to all participants who do not exhibit a gilt.

For more information, contact Jennifer Shike, NSR Director of Junior Activities, at (765) 463-3594 or (217) 485-5315. Information is also available on the NSR Website at www.nationalswine.com.

Basic Tips For Great-Tasting Grilled Beef

• Choose the steak. Tender steak choices (top loin, top sirloin, ribeye, Porterhouse, T-bone, tenderloin and chuck top blade) can be marinated briefly, if desired, prior to grilling to impart the marinade's flavor. Less tender steaks (top round, boneless chuck shoulder, skirt and flank) must be marinated in a tenderizing marinade at least six hours prior to grilling.

• Choose the ground beef. For juiciest burgers, choose 80 percent lean ground beef. Shape into patties using a light touch, otherwise burgers will be compact.

• Choose the right seasoning. Use rubs, marinades, sauces, butters and bastes to add an extra dimension of flavor. Even something as basic as sea salt and cracked black pepper adds a spectacular taste to beef.

• Build the right fire. Understand the difference between direct and indirect grilling and when to use each. Remember, every fuel and fire burn differently.

• Cook it to perfection. It's easy when coals and grill are the right temperature and you follow the basic cooking guidelines for the steak. (If the grill is too hot, the outside of the steak can overcook before the inside is ready; if too cold, you won't get the right searing.)

• Know when your steak is done. Remember medium rare is 145 degrees Fahrenheit; medium 160 degrees Fahrenheit and well done is 170 degrees Fahrenheit. Use an instant-read meat thermometer or the "poke" test to check for doneness. An instant-read thermometer gives you the internal temperature immediately.

• Cooking times are based on beef removed directly from the refrigerator. Top round steaks are most juicy and flavorful when cooked just to medium rare.

• To determine doneness, use an instant-read thermometer to check the internal temperature of the steak or burger near the end of the suggested cooking time. For steaks, horizontally insert the thermometer into the thickest part without touching fat or bone; the temperature registers in seconds. To visually check doneness of steak, cut a small slit near the bone and check the color. For boneless steaks, make a slit near the center. For burgers, insert the thermometer horizontally and check the temperature.

• Turn, don't stab. Tongs are the most important tool in the griller's workshop, enabling you to turn the steak without stabbing it. Look for spring loaded, long-handled tongs — 14 to 16 inches.

• Do not flatten ground beef patties; flavorful juices can escape.

• Give it a rest. After grilling, give the steak a rest for a couple of minutes to let the juices redistribute before cutting into it. A drizzle of olive oil or a pat of butter gives the steak a great sheen, flavor, and finish.

• Keep it clean! Always brush your grill grate with a stiff wire brush to clean it. (If you don't have a brush, use a piece of crumpled foil.) Clean the grate after preheating and again after grilling. Oil the grate with a folded paper towel dipped in oil and rubbed over the bars of the grate. Food will stick to a dirty grate and you won't get those snappy grill marks.

• Grill safely. Make sure the grill rests securely on the ground, deck, patio or other surface. Never leave a lit grill unattended; don't use it indoors or in a garage or carport. Always keep children and pets at a safe distance.

• And above all, have fun. Don't be afraid to try something new. That's what grilling is all about.

BERRY-CHERRY PIE

2 9-inch pie crusts
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
2 tablespoons corn starch
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups fresh sour cherries, pitted, reserving liquid
10-ounces frozen strawberries with syrup, thawed, drained, reserving syrup
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry.

In medium saucepan, combine sugar, tapioca, corn starch, and salt; mix well. Stir in reserved cherry and strawberry liquids. Cook over medium heat approximately 10 minutes or until mixture becomes thick and clear, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in cherries, strawberries, and lemon juice. Pour fruit mixture into pastry-lined plate. Cover with top crust and press edges together with a fork. Make slits in top crust. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes until crust is golden brown and juice begins to bubble through slits in crust.

PRETZEL SURPRISE

2⅔ cups broken pretzels
¾ cup butter
8-ounce package cream cheese
¾ cup sugar
1 package whipped topping
10-ounces strawberries
1 large can crushed pineapple
1 small strawberry gelatin

Combine pretzels and butter and spread in 9X13-inch pan. Bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees, let cool. Prepare topping mix, cream the cream cheese and sugar and add the whipped topping. Spread over pretzel base, covering the edges completely until sealed. Refrigerate. Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Add pineapple juice and strawberries. Chill gelatin mixture until thickened. Spread over the cream cheese mixture. Refrigerate until firm. Serves 12-16.

SHORTCAKE SUPREME

2 cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
⅔ cup milk
½ cup butter, melted
1 cup marshmallow cream
1 cup heavy whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups peach slices
1½ cups strawberry slices
½ cup blueberries

Combine dry ingredients. Add combined egg, milk, and butter, mixing just until moistened. Spread into greased and floured 8-inch layer pan. Bake at 450 degrees for 12-15 minutes or until golden brown. Cool for 10 minutes; remove from pan, cool.

•Combine marshmallow cream, 2 tablespoons heavy cream, and vanilla; mix well until well blended. Whip remaining heavy cream until stiff. Fold in marshmallow cream mixture. Split shortcake in half horizontally; fill with half the fruit and marshmallow cream mixture. Top with remaining fruit and marshmallow cream mixture. Makes 8-10 servings.

Rave reviews abound with Grilled Tomato Pesto-Stuffed Steak as your main dish. Top loin steaks, stuffed and grilled, are as easy as they are delicious.

Featured Recipe

Steak. One simple word that spells a heap of pleasure, according to America's grilling guru, Steven Raichlen, author of the award-winning How To Grill (Workman, 2001).

So why not heap some pleasure on your guests with Grilled Tomato Pesto-Stuffed Steak.

Order the top loin steaks in advance because they should be about 1½-inches thick for stuffing. Then cut a pocket in each one (or have a pocket cut when you order). For the stuffing, just combine prepared basil pesto with dried tomatoes, garlic and rosemary.

Stuff steaks and grill them, carve and serve. Grill fresh tomato slices alongside for an accompaniment, add some crusty rolls and dinner is served.

Grilled Tomato Pesto-Stuffed Steak

Total preparation and cooking time: 40 minutes
2 boneless beef top loin (strip) steaks, cut 1½ inches thick (about 1¾ pounds)
3 large tomatoes, cut into ½- to ¾-inch slices
1 tablespoon grated Romano cheese
Salt and pepper

Pesto:
¼ cup prepared basil pesto
¼ cup finely chopped (oil-packed) dried tomatoes
2 tablespoons finely chopped garlic
2 teaspoons finely chopped fresh rosemary

1. Combine pesto ingredients in small nonstick skillet. Cook over medium-low heat, about four to six minutes or until garlic is tender but not brown.

2. Meanwhile using a sharp knife, cut a pocket in each beef steak. Make a horizontal cut through the center of each steak, parallel to the surface of the meat, about ½ inch from each side. Cut to, but not through opposite side. Spoon half of the pesto mixture into each steak pocket, spreading evenly. Secure openings with wooden picks.

3. Place steaks on grid over medium-low, ash-covered coals. Grill steaks, covered, 16 to 19 minutes for medium rare to medium doneness, turning frequently. Remove from grill; keep warm. Season with salt and pepper, as desired. Grill tomato slices about three minutes or until heated through, turning once. Sprinkle with cheese and season with salt and pepper, as desired.

4. Remove wooden picks; carve steaks crosswise into ½-inch thick slices. Serve with tomatoes.

5. To add an aromatic smoky flavor to your steaks, add fresh herbs such as rosemary or thyme, to your coals. Soak six to eight herb sprigs in water for 30 minutes. Just before adding beef, toss herbs over medium, ash-covered coals. Add beef; cover and grill.

Consuming Thoughts

What's a picnic without potato salad? The standard concoction of lumpy potatoes, mayonnaise, and celery is a thing of the past.

It's been replaced with super spud salads that will jazz up any summertime meal. These salads feature a delightfully difference approach to the standard salad recipe. For instance, do away with that mayonnaise dressing you've used for years. Substitute a tangy vinegar dressing. Or pour on a topping that includes Dijon mustard and blue cheese.

Instead of adding the usual celery and hard-cooked eggs, experiment with mushrooms or crisp green or red peppers, bacon, chives or perhaps toss in sliced apples for a sweeter flavor.

Potato salad doesn't have to be fattening. The potatoes aren't the fattening ingredient in salads. Usually it's the dressing that's the calorie-booster. If you're watching your waistline, use a plain yogurt or cottage cheese dressing. (If you just can't give up the mayonnaise taste, use half yogurt and half mayonnaise.)

One last salad tip when preparing salads with mayonnaise: remember to keep them refrigerated whenever possible. It's important to dispose of any mayonnaise salad that sits out at room temperature for two hours or longer.

Another flavor variation that is a nice alternative to the mayonnaise type potato salad is a good German potato salad using vinegar.

Here are a few tips for making German potato salad: When deciding how many potatoes to cook for the salad use these equivalents — 1 pound of raw potatoes equals about 3 medium potatoes or 3 cups peeled and sliced or 2½ cups peeled and diced.

Use firm, red round potatoes whenever possible for German potato salad. Red or white round potatoes (particularly the "new" spuds that haven't been in storage for months) make the best salad because of their firm consistency.

Good cooks now leave the skin on when boiling potatoes, because many of the nutrients are found just under the surface. In fact, real potato fans never peel potatoes for salads.

Don't overcook the potatoes. Bring them to a boil, and then cook them on a low setting until the skin "pops," or pulls away easily.

Slice, don't cube, the potatoes for the best consistency.

Put the dressing on the potatoes while they are still warm. Then let the salad sit in the refrigerator for a few hours, so that all the flavors are absorbed. At this point, it may be necessary to add more vinegar, or other seasoning. For extra flavor, add a diced apple or pickle to the salad.

If a quantity of fresh unpeeled potatoes are left over, be sure to store them properly. Keep potatoes in a cool, dry, dark and well-ventilated place at 45 to 50 degrees F, for several weeks. Keep only one week at room temperature.

Don't refrigerate potatoes because temperatures below 42 degrees cause potato starch to turn to sugar, producing an uncharacteristic sweet flavor.

Lengthy exposures to sunlight or artificial light cause potatoes to turn green and acquire a bitter flavor.

QUESTION — Betty Hopkins writes that she remembers as a young girl living in Arizona being served a refreshing drink that she'd like to make for her three children. Her neighbor made the drink in individual cups. She used orange sherbert and either ginger ale or orange soda. Does anyone have any idea of the drink and the proper proportions to use?

QUESTION — Betty Hopkins said that an elderly friend, who is no longer living, used to make cucumber salad that "was out of this world." Betty remembers the cucumbers were sliced very thin and boiled. She thinks onions were included.

QUESTION — Malinda Renno, Fort Royal, wants a recipe for barbecued beans, which appeared in the Farm Journal sometime during the 1960s. She lost the recipe, but recalls that it had meatballs and a very good barbecue flavor.

QUESTION — Penny Haber from Bucks County writes that for several years she has used a Victoria Squeezo Strainer to prepare her tomatoes for canning. She has also tried to use it to prepare strawberries and raspberries for jelly making but the proportions have turned out wrong. She would appreciate if readers who have successfully prepared fruit this way send instructions and the proportions of sugar, fruit pectin, and fruit they used.

QUESTION — A Lebanon County reader is looking for a ketchup recipe that was printed last year called "Mother-in-law's Delicious Ketchup."

QUESTION — A reader from Greencastle writes than many years ago her grandmother made pan cake using corn meal. The cakes were soft and crunchy. The reader said her experiments with making corn meal pan cakes turn out thick like pancakes. She would like thin-crunchy ones. She has tried many different recipes with no luck. Can anyone help her?

QUESTION — Karen Ramseur, Williamstown, N.J., writes that she attended the Kutztown Pennsylvania German Festival recently. A Pennsylvania German cooking presentation demonstrated drying corn on a double-walled pan with a funnel adaptor at one end to add water. She also attended the country auction featured at the festival and brought a vegetable dryer. Anyone have recipes to instruct her how to dry vegetables? Karen also thanks readers who sent in "wonderful" lemon jelly and cornbread recipes in answer to her requests.

QUESTION — A reader requests the recipe for baked French toast made with a can of apple pie filling. The recipe had appeared recently in this column, she writes, but she lost it.

QUESTION — Gail Silveira would like a recipe for a corn, shrimp soup, which she recalls had been printed in a previous issue. Anyone have the recipe to which she is referring?

QUESTION — Eva Burrell, Glen Gardner, N.J., wants to know how to make filet of beef on the grill by using wet newspapers and encasing meat in a paste made with kosher salt and water. Years ago, the Burrells used this method but can't remember exactly how it was done or the time required to cook per pound. This made the best filet of beef Eva has ever tasted and she would like to use it for several cookouts.

QUESTION — Ferm Freeman, Elliottsburg, wants a recipe for black olive bread, which she thinks is a Greek recipe. She purchased some at the West Shore Farmers' Market in Lemoyne.

QUESTION — A Lancaster County reader would like a recipe for watermelon wine and other flavors.

QUESTION — Dave Wilder, Gladwyne, grows lingonberries in Berks County. He wants to know uses for this Old World fruit. The Latin name, Wilder writes, is Vacciniam vitis-idaea. Native varieties are sometimes called cowberry.

QUESTION — Martha Weaver, East Earl, would like homemade wine recipes that are sugarless.

QUESTION — Mrs. Thomas Vandzuna, Portage, requests a recipe for sweet sausage. Her son brought some and they love it. Their family buys half a hog and mixes its own mix, and would like to try sweet sausage the next time.

QUESTION — Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, requests a good recipe to make Lebanon bologna.

QUESTION — Sue Hurley, Newville, requests recipes to make different kinds of instant powdered tea mixes, such as raspberry and peach.

QUESTION — A reader writes that many new dessert recipes are featured in magazines and newspaper, but she is reluctant to buy expensive ingredients for recipes that she isn't sure her family will like. She'd rather try recipes that other readers enjoy. The reader would like some new dessert recipes that other readers recommend.

QUESTION — Rosalie Nolt wants a recipe for New England clam chowder, similar to Friendly's or Campbell's soup.

QUESTION — Josephy Steffey wants a recipe for deer bag bologna that tastes like Lebanon bologna.

ANSWER — A Perry County reader wanted a recipe for pickle relish that tastes similar to that served at food stands that sell hot dogs. Thanks to Regina Mack, New Bethlehem, for sending a recipe that she writes always receives good comments from customers at the many foods stands where her family served it.

Sweet Cucumber Relish

3-4 quarts cucumbers
2 red peppers
3 green peppers
4 cups vinegar
5 cups sugar
1 teaspoon mustard seed
¾ teaspoon allspice
¾ teaspoon turmeric
3 tablespoons flour

Remove seeds and grind cucumbers coarsely. Sprinkle with salt and let set overnight. In the morning, drain well. Add the ground peppers, vinegar, and sugar; cook 10 minutes. Make a paste of spices and flour, add a bit of water. Add to relish, cook until smooth and thick. Fill jars and seal.

ANSWER — A Hegins reader wanted recipes for serving turnips. Thanks to Joan Yarnall, Gilbertsville, for sending a recipe.

Hot Turnip Slaw

4 medium turnips
4 slices bacon
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg
½ cup sour cream
Salt and pepper

Fry bacon until well done. Remove bacon, set aside. Leave bacon grease in pan. Peel turnips and slice very thin. Place in pan. Sprinkle turnips with salt and pepper. Stir turnips to coat with grease. Put lid on pan. Lower heat. Stir turnips often to keep from sticking to the pan. Add a little water if they become too dry. When turnips are soft, make a dressing of the following ingredients and pour over turnips.

Dressing:

Beat 1 egg slightly. Add sour cream, sugar, and vinegar. Crumble bacon. Pour over turnips. Stir well. Bring turnips back to boil. Serve.

Thanks to another reader for sending in several turnip recipes, which the Hegins reader is sure to enjoy.

Steamed Turnips

Steam whole turnips 10-18 minutes or until tender. Cut petal-fashion and season with salt, paprika, oil or French dressing, mayonnaise, or ⅓ cup grated cheese.

Mashed Turnips

Cut turnips into 4-6 wedges each and steam in ½ cup milk until tender. Pass through hot ricer or food mill; season with butter, salt, pepper, and milk left over from cooking the turnips.

Scalloped Turnips

Use slicer and cut chilled turnips paper thin; cook in casserole in ½ cup hot milk seasoned with ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon crushed black peppercorns. Sprinkle with bread crumbs, shredded cheese, and paprika. Cover casserole and bake in preheated oven at 400 degrees for 10-15 minutes or just until tender.

Crisp Shredded Turnips

Shred 4-6 chilled turnips and put immediately into 2 tablespoons hot milk. Stir well, cover pan, and cook 5 minutes longer. Season with:

½ teaspoon salt
Freshly ground black peppercorns
Dash cayenne

Serve while slightly crisp. Variation: Salt shredded turnips and cook in oiled hot casserole in preheated oven 6-8 minutes or saute with ½ clove garlic. Discard garlic and add salt to taste.

Baked Turnips

Select whole baby turnips or flat ones no more than 1½ inches thick. Toss or brush with oil and heat rapidly by steaming 5 minutes or by putting beneath broiler for 10 minutes. Bake until tender, or about 10-15 minutes. Serve like baked potatoes.

Creamed Turnips

Cut turnips into quarters; simmer in ¾ cup milk seasoned with crushed white peppercorns until almost tender or about 15 minutes; add thickening (flour or corn starch) for cream sauce and dash of nutmeg.

Here's another recipe from Anna Martin, Denver.

Beef-Flavored Turnips

3 medium-sized potatoes
3 medium-sized turnips
Salt and pepper
2½ cups beef broth

Pare potatoes and turnips and slice thinly or cut in cubes. Add broth and seasoning. Cook until tender. Just before serving, garnish with chopped parsley.

Another Reason To Say 'No' To Fries?

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Someone recently wrote Chow Line nutritionists, "I've heard something recently about a substance in fried and baked goods, especially starches, that might cause cancer. Is it something to be worried about?"

Chow Line replied: You're talking about acrylamide, a chemical manufactured to use in clarifying agents, adhesives, thickening agents for agricultural sprays and other products. In April, Swiss researchers surprised the scientific community by discovering that acrylamide is also formed when certain starch-based foods are fried or otherwise cooked at temperatures higher than 248 degrees Fahrenheit.

Those foods include fried potatoes (including french fries), potato chips, crackers — foods that don't have a high nutritional value that people should eat less of, anyway. But they also include breads and cereals, which are staples in a well-balanced diet. Although the study has yet to be published in a scientific journal, eyebrows were raised, to say the least.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, direct exposure to acrylamide can affect the human nervous system, but that's not likely to occur at levels normally found in the environment. In addition, lifetime exposure to acrylamide in drinking water causes cancer in animals, but it's not clear whether this occurs in humans, as well.

The World Health Organization called a meeting in late June, during which scientists called for more research. That's not a bad idea. For one thing, the cancer link in humans is tentative. In addition, there seems to be a lot of good news/bad news associated with acrylamide.

On one hand, who said a person's average intake of acrylamide is significantly less than the level known to cause nerve damage in laboratory animals. On the other hand, amounts of acrylamide in these foods is significantly higher than what the U.S. EPA allows in a glass of water. More research would help sort out recommendations regarding the substance.

In the meantime, nutritionists say this is one more good reason to avoid starchy fried foods.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Time certainly does change a lot of things. Our attitude about work is one of them.

Recently, I attended a baby shower. Now of course most of the women were young. The gifts were very different than those that my children wore as babies. As newborns mine were wrapped in blankets — they often came apart as they were too small. Now I saw some infant wear made of denim instead of soft fabrics. There were overalls for the baby that would make him look much older than he is.

We talked of many things as we sat around a table eating cake. One subject was school and the teachers that their children would have in September. In my school days we had the same teacher for several years as she taught several grades.

Another topic of conversation was wild animals. Especially the kind that damage our gardens. Most people can relate to rabbits, chipmunks, and squirrels as they eat their flowers and dig up their bulbs. But when the subject of shooting them was mentioned they recoiled and said they could not possibly do that. When I said that I had shot a number of squirrels and then had my boys skin them, they were shocked. I added that we cooked and ate them too.

I really doubt that any of the young women had ever killed a chicken and then picked off the feathers and dressed it. They thought of this job as very disgusting. But, it was a necessary job, so I did it.

I'm sure that pioneer women did many jobs that I would not want to do. They did them because the work had to be done. The years have changed how we get our edibles. No wonder children think that the supermarkets is the source of their food rather than the farm.

Quick Buying Tips For Fresh Pennsylvania Snap Beans

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program offers these tips when buying fresh grown snap beans:

- Look for long, slender pods that are free of scars.
- Refrigerate unwashed beans in a perforated plastic bag.
- Each pound of snap beans includes approximately four servings.
- Snap beans are best when steamed or microwaved. Boiling will cause beans to lose many of their nutrients.

My Farm's Mission Is?

Most farmers operate farms to make money. It's why they're in business, their ultimate mission. So why bother spending the time to define your mission? What's it worth to you? I hope that I can convince you why it's worth the time and energy to make the effort.

Suppose a stranger asks you, "Why are you farming?" In two to three sentences you should be able to tell them why your farm business exists, what you are doing, and the direction in which your business is growing, — in other words, your farm's mission. By definition, that is what a mission statement does, — it indicates to those inside the business as well as to customers the reason for your farm's existence.

An added benefit of a mission statement is that by going through the process of developing one, participating members of your farm need to come to common agreement on the reasons for your farm's existence and its intended direction. To provide good leadership, a mission statement is essential, and it helps to determine and clarify your business goals and objectives.

A good starting point in composing your mission statement is to develop your own personal mission statement. This statement is unique to you; — it is the values and principles upon which you base your life. It's what's important to you and your family and what you are personally striving to achieve. Your business should reflect your personal goals and aspirations, the reasons why you want to farm. Ask yourself: Do I really want to start or expand a farm business that doesn't reflect what I hold to be personally important?

After you have developed this personal mission statement, it's important to synthesize these concepts into your business mission statement. What are your business values? How will customers, employees, and family be treated? What about honesty and integrity?

When your business values are established, you are ready to look at your vision for the future. Where will your business be in three-five years if things go as you wish? Growth, position, and community are factors you may want to consider in your mission statement.

When writing your mission statement, keep these components in mind: What is the nature of your farm business, the products or services you provide, the technology or type of farming that generates the products, who your customers are, the scope of the business (for example: farrow-to-finish), the needs of the customer, values and beliefs, and the direction of your farm?

Finally, you want to sum up and reflect the purpose of your farm business in your mission statement. Purpose can be a measure of your own personal success, that is, whether the farm is meeting your own internal needs. And purpose can be used as an external measure of your farm's ability to meet customer needs.

An example of a mission statement is:

B's Better Beef provides only the highest quality naturally raised beef, free of hormones and antibiotics, to local customers. We work to achieve harmony of nature, family, and community in delivering a product that enhances the health of our customers.

I hope that if you have taken the time to read this article, you will also take the time to put a mission statement into operation on your farm. Need help? Contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 or e-mail us at parfarmlink@redrose.net.

Homebreds Come Up Big At Reading Swine Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

Samantha Rabenold, 11, already with five years of showing hogs as a 4-H'er under her belt, took home the overall grand champion honor at Reading Fair's swine show Monday.

Her 223-pound crossbred first won the light heavyweight class.

Show judge Larry Arnold described the hog as "sound and able to get out and around" with a looser structure than many of the animals in the ring.

Her brother, Todd, who now breeds and shows hogs, sparked Samantha's interest in the swine business. She now has 15 animals at home and besides bringing four animals to the Reading Fair, she has more at home to take to Kutztown, Allentown, KILE, and Farm Show.

Her family farms 600 acres and milks cows. In addition to hogs, she has expanded to begin showing dairy beef, which she is now doing for the second year.

In the championship drive, Arnold said that the hogs were "all very similar — complete and total package pigs. I've kept hogs that are sound, hogs that we can live with in all production phases."

Jared Treichler, 18, Fleetwood, showed a hog that was "honest and very complete, and fits in logically with the champion," said Arnold. Treichler won reserve champion overall placing with a 240-pound homebred, "Bruce," a Duroc/Hampshire cross.

Treichler, from Twin Pines Farm, owns 50 breeding and market swine at home and plans to select from those animals to compete at Kutztown Fair before he heads off to East Stroudsburg University this fall. He plans to major in biology and is looking to a possible career in forensics.

He will also compete at the Farm Show.

Show judge Larry Arnold, Womelsdorf, has 25 years of judging experience and will judge three county fairs this year. He operates a 54-acre farm with 60 purebred sows, mostly Yorkshire, but also Durocs. This was Arnold's first experience judging at the Reading Fair.

Matt Manbeck, an FFA participant, took home both champion fitter and champion showman honors from the show, besides winning reserve champion middleweight and champion placing in the pair competition.

Manbeck, Womelsdorf, a graduate of Conrad Weiser High School, is planning to attend Virginia Tech in the fall to study animal science. He brought two hogs to the show.

Christmas Belle Sweeps Lebanon Junior Dairy, Holstein Open Shows

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Holly Miller received a Christmas present from her grandparents Pat and Paul Miller about six years ago.

That Christmas present — a calf named (what else?) Great-View Del Christmas Belle — allowed Holly to literally sweep both junior dairy show early in the week and open Holstein show late last week at the Lebanon Area Fair.

Christmas Belle (S: Mansion-Valley Delaware, D: Great-View Jess Beautiful) won reserve junior All-Pennsylvania as a 4-year-old a little while ago. The cow already was grand champion three years in a row at the Dauphin County Fair, noted Holly.

Holly, 18, is the daughter of J. Michael and Linda Miller, Harrisburg. The 10-year 4-H'er is a member of No-So-Ann (North-South Annville) Dairy Club.

As for the champion, Holly said she received help from all her family, including her parents and grandparents.

"It's the only way to get it all done," she said.

Holly, who plans to enter Empire Beauty School, is a graduate of Central Dauphin High School.

Holly noted that the family exhibits at the All-American, Farm Show, district 4-H show, and the Pennsylvania Holstein spring and fall shows.

Reserve champion went to Adam Wolfe, 19, son of Ron and Brenda Wolfe, Bellegrove.

Adam, a graduate of Annville Cleona High School, won the championship about three years ago at the fair, he said.

The reserve went to Dale-Pride Malachite Angelica, a 6-year-old. Adam said the cow is classified 91 Excellent.

Adam noted he attends Shippensburg and Kutztown fairs, in addition to the southeast and south-central district shows. Adam also attends the All-American and Holstein Association spring show.

As for the reserve, Adam attributes the ribbon to "a long line of cow families," he said. "We take good care of the cows." He said the herd is fed a TMR from a professional nutritionist.

Adam works full-time at BHM Farm Equipment in North Annville as a mechanic and part-time on the farm.

Grandparents Dale and Thelma Hostetter and Adam's uncle, Alan Hostetter, operate the farm, Dale-Pride Holsteins.

Mifflinburg FFA Members Attend Washington Leadership Conference

MIFFLINBURG (Snyder Co.) — Rhonda Hook and Penny Spangler of the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter recently attended the 2002 Washington Leadership Conference (WLC) in Washington, D.C.

Rhonda is the daughter of Steve and Wanda Hook of RR Middleburg and is presently serving as the president of the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter. Penny is the daughter of Lee and Kathy Spangler of RR Mifflinburg and is the assistant vice president for the chapter. Both are active in the FFA and will be showing livestock at the upcoming Union County West End Fair.

The week-long interactive program helps FFA members build their leadership skills and self confidence while preparing for roles in their chapters, communities and future careers. They attended workshop sessions on persuasive communication, character leadership and building relationships, and participated in discussions on citizenship.

"We live in an increasingly competitive world," says Dr. Larry Case, National FFA advisor and coordinator, agricultural and rural education with the U.S. Department of Education. 'Tomorrow's leaders must develop skills in these areas to effectively compete. Every student leaves WLC with an advantage, because it gives those young people cutting-edge leadership skills and valuable insight for productive citizenship."

Students also increased their understanding of the nation's heritage with visits to Mount Vernon, Arlington National Cemetery, the Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt Memorials and other historic sights in Washington, D.C.

The conference is an activity of the National FFA Organization in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Education.

A TIME OF HARVEST
OCTOBER 11-12

You ask

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Frequently Asked Canning Questions

We have received a number of food preservation questions at the cooperative extension office that may be of interest to many of you.

"Can peaches and pears be processed in the boiling water bath canner. Are they high acid foods?"

Yes. Foods with a pH value lower than 4.6 are considered to be high acid foods. PH is a chemical term used to measure acidity. High acid foods include peaches, pears, cherries, apples, apricots, nectarines, berries, figs, grapes, pineapple, plums, grapefruit and orange sections, rhubarb, and most tomatoes. However, tomatoes are on the borderline of pH values and need to have lemon juice or citric acid added to ensure safe pH values. Fermented and pickled vegetables, relishes, and jams, jellies, and marmalades can also be safely processed in the boiling water bath.

"My mother never processed her pickles. If a recipe doesn't call for processing, do I need to do so?"

Yes. Although many recipes passed down through the years or found in older cookbooks do not include instructions for processing, it is necessary to minimize the risk of food spoilage by processing high acid foods in the boiling water bath and low acid foods in the pressure canner. Older recipes frequently used the open kettle method where the hot food was poured into the jars and sealed and stored. Foods prepared in this manner pose a serious risk of bacterial growth and food poisoning.

"Is it really necessary to leave a certain amount of head space in the jar?"

Yes. Proper head space in a jar is important to assure a vacuum seal. Too little head space may cause the food to expand and bubble out when air is being forced out from under the lid during processing. The bubbling food may leave a deposit on the rim of the jar or the seal of the lid and prevent the jar from sealing properly. If too much head space is allowed, the food at the top is likely to discolor from oxidation.

It is also possible for the jar to not seal properly because there will not be enough processing time to drive all the air out of the jar. Generally ½ inch head space is needed for fruits, juices, and tomatoes. One-fourth inch head space is needed for hot jams and jellies. One to one and one-half inches head space is needed for starchy vegetables because they are more dense. Refer to USDA tested recipes for amounts of head space for specific foods.

"Should jars be sterilized before canning?"

Jars do not need to be sterilized before canning if they will be filled with food and processed in a boiling water bath canner for at least 10 minutes or if they will be processed in a pressure canner. Jars that will not be processed in a boiling water bath for at least 10 minutes need to be sterilized by boiling them in hot water for 10 minutes before they are filled. Some jelly and jam recipes and some pickle recipes only need to be processed for 5 minutes-jars for those products should be sterilized.

"Is it possible to process two layers of jars in a canner at one time?"

You can process two layers at one time in either the boiling water bath or the pressure canner. Place a small wire rack between the layers so that water or steam will circulate around each jar. Make certain that the water covers the top of the jars by one inch in a boiling water bath canner. The pressure canner should have two to three inches of water in the bottom.

"The underside of the metal lids sometimes discolor. Is the food safe to use?"

Natural compounds in some foods, particularly acids, corrode metal and make a dark deposit on the underside of jar lids. This deposit on the lid is harmless if the lid is sealed and the food was properly processed.

"What causes jars to break in a canner?"

There are several reasons for jars breaking. Commercial food jars may not withstand temperatures in the pressure canner as well as jars manufactured for home canning. Some jars have hairline cracks that may go unnoticed until they crack in the canning process. Putting jars directly on the bottom of the canner instead of on a rack stresses the glass. Sudden change in the temperature of the glass occurs when hot food is put into cold jars and when jars of raw or unheated food is placed directly into boiling water in the canner. This creates too wide a margin between the temperature of the filled jars and the water in the canner.

"How can the white deposit that gets on canning jars be removed?"

The scale that forms on canning jars come from minerals in hard water used in processing. Soak the jars for several hours in a solution containing one cup of vinegar and one gallon of water.

"Is it safe to can vegetables without salt?"

Yes. Salt is used for flavor only and is not necessary to prevent spoilage. However, salt is an essential ingredient in preserving the texture and flavor in most pickle recipes.

"Why do recipes call for canning salt?"

Table salt contains fillers that may cause the liquid in canned products to become cloudy. Iodized salt may cause the liquid to darken. Canning salt is pure refined salt available where canning supplies are sold.

"Some jars have lost liquid during processing. Should it be replaced?

No. Loss of liquid does not cause food to spoil but the food above the liquid may darken with exposure to more air.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 10 a.m.—1 p.m. Call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Rm.1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

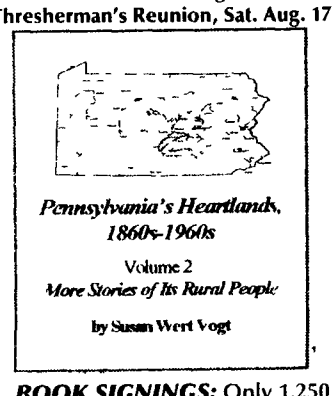
BOOK SIGNING: At Rough & Tumble Thresherman's Reunion, Sat. Aug. 17



BOOK SIGNINGS: Only 1,250 published of First Edition of each numbered volume(s)

What's so special about Vol. 2?
Author Susan Wert Vogt's accounts of Pennsylvania's heartlands region make "Norman Rockwell-like" rural scenes come to life in its 160 pages! Her 1970's old-time "I Remember When" columns from The Times (Port Royal, PA) depict rural life much the way it was everywhere in rural PA (1860s-1960s) before new-fangled technology!

Filled with color & old-time photos (including threshing machines & antique tractors in its first 40 pages), Vol. 2 also shows what the current generation is doing to preserve rural history today

Rough And Tumble Aficionados Prepare To Show Off History

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — "Not everyone was happy with the name 'Rough and Tumble Engineers,'" said 92-year-old Roy Herr. "I remember a board member saying, 'That name will kill us. Kids will be afraid to come.' As for myself, I thought the name added a certain amount of charm."

Whatever the name evokes results in attracting people from all over the world to watch steam engines, antique tractors, and numerous other antique equipment strut their stuff during the association's annual Threshermen's Reunion.

The "rough and tumble" designation refers to the rugged equipment that needed to travel over roads and fields full of gullies and ditches in all kinds of weather to reach the next destination to complete a job. Sometimes the equipment tumbled into rivers when traveling across shaky bridges or got stuck in mud — hence the term tumble.

During the early and middle 1900s, the powerful traction engines and steam plows transformed vast unbroken land into smooth highways, crushed rocks with its rollers, drilled and quarried with steam from boilers, and threshed enormous harvests for that era.

Last year about 22,000 people swarmed the Rough and Tumble grounds in Kinzers to see many of these reliable old machines in action. This year, the organization's 54th annual reunion is scheduled for Aug. 14-17.

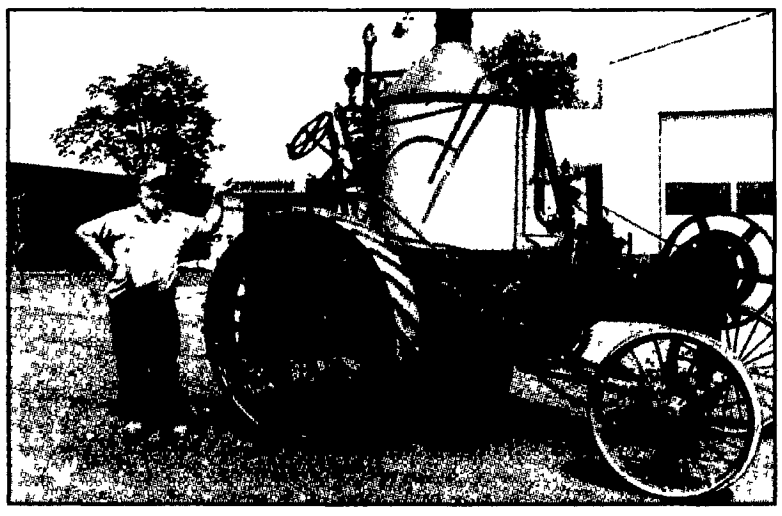
Herr, a charter member of the original group, is 92 years old, and still active in the organization. He said the organization can trace its roots to 1912, when legislation was passed "to favor cars over cleated wheels" by forbidding the heavy equipment on state highways.

"The Right of Way — All the Road for All the People," became the rallying cry of 3,500 farmers and threshermen who paid $3.50 each to lobby the U.S. government. The law was eventually repealed, although with restrictions to the width and spacing of the cleats.

Although lobbying was no longer needed, farmers and threshermen were concerned that steam and the engines and equipment they had grew up with were becoming obsolete. They wanted to see the rugged equipment in action, to hear the shrill scream of the steam as pressure was released from the chugging engines.

In 1948, a group of farmers and threshermen planned a picnic on a Kinzers farm owned by Arthur Young. Later, property across the road was purchased as a permanent site for the annual event.

More than 22,000 people are expected to attend the 54th Rough and Tumble engineers Threshermen's Reunion Aug. 14-17. Gathered around the 1920 John Deere Waterloo Boy, which is an original and the first model commercially sold by John Deere, are volunteers preparing for the event: Roy Herr, right, with Nevin Brubaker, Judy Whiteside, Williard Adams, Dave Bayuer, Lewis Frantz, and Joy Frantz.



Look, wander, remember.... More than 22,000 people come to see engines such as this during the annual event — slated as the most complete steam and gas show east of the Mississippi. Those on display include models owned by Rough and Tumble and by private collectors.

Nevin Brubaker made this one-of-a-kind tractor that he "married together" by using parts from Ford and cleat tractors.

The first event was so successful that the organization has continue to grow ever since.

Although many of the oldtimers who grew up using the equipment are no longer alive, their passion for the sights and sounds of the past have expanded. People come to look, wander the grounds, and see the past come to life.

"Now our purpose is to teach others what life was like when their grandparents were alive," said Lewis Frantz, president.

The completely volunteer group does an astounding job. They offer so many displays and demonstrations that it's impossible to see everything in one day.

Here are some of the planned displays: sawmill in operation, parade of power of steam traction engines, hit and miss engines, antique tractors, wagons, and automobiles, stationary balers, shingle mill, steam crane, steam shovel, threshing machines, steam railroad rides, large gas engines, stationary steam, engine museum, model steam and gas engines, blacksmithing, early home appliances, and even a large flea and craft market.

"Some people come just for the food," Frantz said. "You can't find any better place to eat."

Not all board members and volunteers have an agricultural background. Some come to see the events and are so intrigued that they volunteer to help the following years. Such was the case of Williard Adams, who now serves as board curator. Adams said his son attended the show and talked him in to attending the next year. Adams, a mechanic by trade, said he is more fascinated by the engineering behind old equipment than he is by the new.

Board members joke about "boys and their toys," but a few females on the board are also loyal supporters of the event.

Visitors can tour the museum, which features the Willock Collection of gas engines. This 1869 upright, made by a German company, is one of four in the world that is in running condition.

Joy Frantz said, "I live and sleep John Deere because my husband is president of the association." Joy attended her first show 40 years ago and was asked to take admission fees at the gate. "I've been taking the money ever since, and roped quite a few more people into helping," she said.

Rough and Tumble has rare pieces, such as a 1904 12-horsepower Westinghouse upright, which had been sold locally many years ago to a South Carolina collector. Three years ago, Adams purchased the tractor and brought it back to its hometown.

All equipment is Pennsylvania-inspected to ensure safety in running the equipment and for insurance purposes.

"It's like having an automobile inspected," Frantz said of the added advantage of inspection. If it isn't inspected, you never know what you might run into to get it in running condition. Those that are inspected are valued at much higher prices.

"But it's hard to get a 'boy' to part with his toy if he doesn't need the money," Adams said of buying rare pieces.

Grounds open at 7 a.m. Special events include threshing demonstrations, tractor games for adults to show off skills, and musical entertainment on Wednesday evening. A children's pedal pull, antique tractor pull, and square dancing is scheduled for Thursday evening. Friday evening offers steam games and music at 6:30 p.m.

Admission is $7 for adults, $3 for children 6-12, and under 6 years of age free.

For more information, call Rough and Tumble, (717) 442-4249 or visit the Website, www.roughandtumble.org.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Children's China Charming, Collectible

Once upon a time, in the late 18th century, there was a delightful custom of giving children china mugs, plates, and bowls as special gifts. Sometimes they were imprinted, or handpainted with the child's name. Other times they were decorated with transfer print nursery rhymes and scenes. Some were given as a reward for good behavior and in addition to the child's name they would say "to a good boy (or girl). By the 1850s they often had a serious purpose with messages extolling virtues and social reforms.

Today the items make a unique gift to an adult friend with the same name as on a mug. When you can find them...and afford them, the pieces can be a serious collection.

Many collectors find a piece here and there, while others build a collection from shop and auction discoveries. Rarities are even expensive at auction, where they can show up in Continental sales from $300 to over a thousand dollars. American collectors have competition from the British and the Japanese.

Of course it doesn't have to be old to be collectible. Popular these days are items from the early 20th century, that include Disney motifs.

The subject is well documented in the book "Gifts For Good Children," written by Noel Riley and Maureen Batkin in two-volumes, published in England. It is available through the Antique Collectors' Club in Wappingers Falls, N.Y.

Though originally made in England, the plates, mugs, and bowls were also made in the 19th century in Germany for export. A limited amount was made in Japan and France.

Antique Detective

Originally the pieces were intended to be used everyday and were made of earthenware.

Pieces made of porcelain were commissioned by the wealthy, usually for baptismal gifts and other special occasions.

According to Riley when decorated pottery started, it was a luxury available only to the wealthy.

"It ended when developments in mass production enabled cheap ceramics to find a place in the homes of the working classes."

CLUES: Early English children's china was made by many potteries. Among them Staffordshire, Minton and Wedgwood. Many of the Staffordshire pieces were unmarked.

It was also made in lustreware.

This is especially true when the pieces have bright, "canary yellow" borders and designs.

Children's china in the late 18th to early 19th century was a mark of status. As the book points out the children in the designs were elegantly dressed. By the mid-19th century scenes have more universal appeal. Not as many children riding ponies.

One way to tell if the china is mid-19th century is the subject matter, with homey family scenes. By then the pieces were being almost in mass production. Close examination of the prints shows less attention to detail.

The "Gifts for Good Children" volumes offer good advice for a beginning collector, and the many categories of subjects. For example there are school lessons, religious morals, cartoons, etc.

Don't pass up some of the wonderful post 1950s children's ware.

Quality artists such as Susie Cooper and Beatrix Potter are still reasonably priced, but going up.

Antiques Questions And Answers

I'm an amateur collector with many items that are "unidentifiable." I hope you can help me identify the age of this rocker. I've had conflicting appraisals ranging from 1820 to 1920.

E.M.C. - Land O'Lakes, FL

The clues to the age are the stair-step carved back and the overall simplicity of design where the arms and legs are one piece. It is in the Arts and Crafts style, with the back hinting to the Art Deco period. It probably dates 1915.

This walnut dresser was bought by my mom in the 1950s. What is the age and value?

A.E.S. - Moorefield, W.VA

From your photo your dresser dates 1900-1918. Since it was a mass produced piece there should be a manufacturer's name inside a drawer. It could sell in an antique shop for $200 or more.

I inherited these three lightweight metal pieces; a footed cake dish, vase and covered dish. No marks. When were they made and can you tell me anything about them? The metal isn't shiny.

L.C. - Staten Island, NY

From your description I think your pieces were made for commercial use in hotels and restaurants. The metal could be chrome that just needs soap and water to return the shine, dating 1930s, 40s.

Can you help me price this 31-piece set of porcelain dinnerware? It is for six place settings and is marked "The Linwood" in orange and "Noritake" (M), hand painted "Nippon" in green.

J.E. - Springdale, PA

Your dinnerware was made in Japan (the word Nippon means Japan) in the 1920s. In mint condition the set could sell in a shop for $900 to $1,000.

This two-part hutch has a porcelain shelf that pulls off.

The open space may have had a small roll up door as there are two grooves inside. It was originally painted and we stripped it. Can you give me any information?

J.C. - New Kensington, PA

Your maple kitchen cabinet dates around 1920. It could sell in a shop for $500-800.

This red violin was passed down to me. Inside it reads "Orchestra favorite Antonius Stradivarius, Germany." Can you tell me about it?

B.B. - New London, IA

All of the violins made by 18th century violin maker Antonio Stradivari, Cremona, Italy are known and registered. Thousands of copies and fakes bearing his name have been made ever since. Yours was made in the 1920s, 1930s. It would sell in a shop for $75 to $150.

This bronze sculpture of a kneeling woman holding six candles is marked "Roman Bronze Works, NY." It is signed E.P. Seidel. Can you date it and tell what it is worth?

H.L.G. - Honesdale, PA

Roman Bronze Works was one of the most important bronze foundries in America. Your Art Deco style sculpture could sell at auction from $10,000 up.

I have a set of old coin glass sauce dishes. They have quarters with the date 1892 etched into the sides. Can you tell me what they may be worth?

B. J. P. - Schuyler, NE
(collectors Journal)

They could have a shop price of $120 each.

Can you help identify this small wooden spoon with a crude inscription carved on it "one for all"? Could it be a mold?

J.C. (Antique Shoppe)

You appear to have an example of 18th/19th century treenware. The word comes from tree, since it is made from wood. From the 16th century on it was used for tableware, boxes etc. From the size your piece it could be a salt scoop and given as a gift, since salt was considered precious.

Philadelphia County Fair Post Results

PHILADELPHIA — The 11th annual Philadelphia County Fair took place in Fairmont Park in June with 4-H and FFA students from the city of Philadelphia competing for more than $6,000 in premiums in various animal shows.

In addition to the show, a sale of market swine was conducted on Thursday evening for the seventh year. Peter Krall from Catasauqua served as the auctioneer for the sale. The sale averaged $200 per hog.

The non-animal entries were again housed in a 40-foot trailer which was adapted for fair displays a few years ago. This display area, enclosed in glass, works very well since a building is not available.

The best of show winners are as follows:

4-H and FFA: Allison Walker.
Youth under 19: Lorissa Lazarus.
Vegetables: Lance Lazarus.
Preserved foods. Irene Veal
Baked goods: Gywnn Gaines.
Horticulture: Sally McCabe.
Needlecraft: LaRue Blose
Arts, photography and crafts Joyce Randell.
Group exhibits· Manatawna 4-H.
Apiary· Donald Zimmerman.

Monsanto Choice Genetics™ Breeding System Provides Flexibility, Increased Control

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Monsanto Choice Genetics™, a leader in developing technology-based solutions in swine genetics, has introduced a new closed-herd breeding system that gives producers greater control over herd health and genetic performance.

The Core Matriarch Pyramid™ is designed specifically to reduce the introduction of live animals into a producer's operation. The system results in better control of health and the ability to quickly introduce genetic advancements.

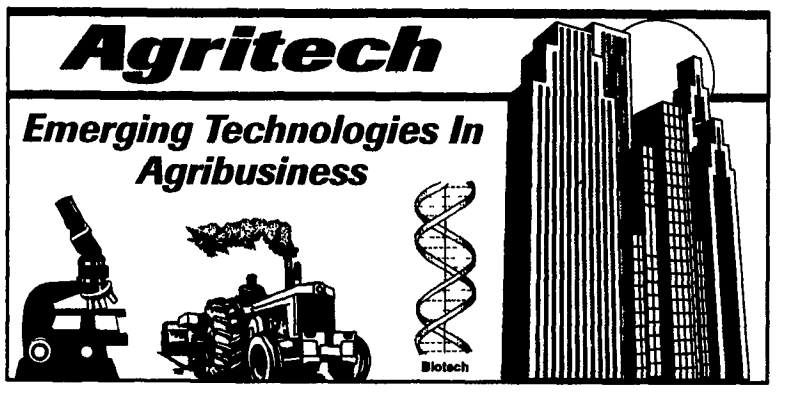
Tom Kasser, general manager of Monsanto Choice Genetics, says the system will result in greater flexibility for producers by providing diverse genetic options.

"This system gives producers a tremendous opportunity to get the most value from their operations," said Kasser. "Because genetics are introduced through semen, the health risks of live animal entry are significantly reduced. The system also streamlines the introduction of new genetic technologies into the herd, allowing producers to benefit from new advancements faster than before."

The Core Matriarch Pyramid is based on one pivotal Genepacker® maternal line, which is a cross of two unrelated Landrace lines. This Genepacker line provides the genetic benefits of a purebred, but offers producers the management benefits of a hybrid.

According to David Fox, director of genetic services for Monsanto Choice Genetics, the system will allow producers to choose semen from a Genepacker grandparent boar and breed F1 females right on their farm, making it easier to maintain a baseline of pure genetics, produce a consistent product, and be in a better position to take advantage of new genetic breakthroughs.

"Because the system uses semen as a basis for breeding, new genetic advances can be incorporated into the herd quickly and easily," says Fox. "The time between the discovery of a new technology and introduction into a producer's herd will be greatly reduced."



USDA Awards Grants For Marketing Projects

WASHINGTON, D.C. — USDA has awarded matching grants totaling $1.3 million to support agricultural market research and demonstration projects in 21 states and Puerto Rico.

The grants, announced July 18 and provided under the Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program, will be used to improve marketing systems for food and agricultural products or to identify new market opportunities for farm products.

USDA has awarded the following grants:

• Alabama — $49,500 to the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries, in cooperation with Alabama A&M University and Tuskegee University, to determine the market for goat meat in central Alabama and to assess its sales potential for limited resource producers seeking to diversify their operations.

• Arizona — $31,580 to the Arizona Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Arizona State University East, to assess the level of awareness of, and impact on sales, of the Arizona Grown brand among minority consumers.

• Arkansas — $98,000 to the Arkansas State Plant Board, in cooperation with Winrock International Institute of Agricultural Development, and the University of Arkansas Extension Service, to assist small vegetable cooperatives in the Delta to increase direct sales to local markets by providing management and marketing training to cooperative members.

• Colorado — $24,030 to the Colorado Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Colorado State University, to study consumer response to country of origin labeling of beef products.

• Idaho — $35,175 to the Idaho Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Idaho Barley Commission and the Montana Wheat and Barley Commission, to assess the impact of full implementation of NAFTA provisions on U.S. exports of malt and barley to Mexico, and to identify strategies to maintain and expand market share

• Iowa — $81,700 to the Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship, to assess wine grape production, processing, and consumer demand in the Iowa region to assist the emerging Iowa wine industry to make better business decisions; and, in cooperation with the Iowa Area Development Group, Iowa State University, Iowa Corn Promotion Board, Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, Iowa Cattlemen's Association, Iowa Institute for Cooperatives, Iowa Department of Economic Development, and Iowa Renewable Fuels Association, to conduct nationwide needs assessments of dry mill corn processors and end users, and sponsor a national conference.

• Kentucky — $119,990 to the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Kentucky State University, to measure the impact of density, temperature, substrate and salinity on the quality and survivability of live shrimp in transit to urban markets in North America; and, in cooperation with the University of Kentucky and KyVirtual.com, to develop, test and evaluate Web-based methods of marketing food and agricultural products internationally.

• Louisiana — $29,050 to the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry, in cooperation with the Louisiana Agricultural Experiment Station, to conduct flavor and nutritional analyses, and to develop a packaging system that will enhance competitiveness of U.S. sweet potatoes in the export market by maintaining nutritional quality and maximizing shelf life.

• Maine — $38,000 to the Maine Department of Agriculture, Food, and Rural Resources, in cooperation with the University of Maine Heart of Maine RC&D, and Maine Gourmet and Specialty Food Producers, to help farm-based producers and processors of specialty agricultural products to expand sales though conferences, trade shows and organizational development

• Maryland — $57,000 to the Maryland Department of Agriculture to complete a comprehensive supply/demand analysis of the Maryland organic sector identify opportunities for producers to expand their markets, and complete case studies of three promising organic product markets.

• Massachusetts — $62,700 to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, in cooperation with the Wampanoag Aquinnah Shellfish Hatchery, to develop, test and compare two packaging systems for live bay scallops, and to introduce live product to area restaurants; and, in cooperation with the Pioneer Valley Growers Association, to assess the opportunities and challenges of increasing use of locally grown food in private schools in Massachusetts, establish a pilot program with three private schools, and develop a guide for private school food buyers.

• Michigan — $180,175 to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Michigan Food Processors Association, to identify marketing opportunities for specialty food producers and processors through retail outlets and festivals in high-tourist areas; in cooperation with the Michigan Asparagus Advisory Board, Michigan State University and others, to assess the market for asparagus-based snack products, and to develop a plan for test marketing products; and, in cooperation with Michigan State University and the Midwest Nut Producers Council, to devise a marketing strategy for two new chestnut products in restaurants and retail markets.

• Minnesota — $84,500 to the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Minnesota Shippers Association, the Minnesota Soybean Research and Promotion Council, and the University of Minnesota, to explore opportunities for direct marketing northern soybeans in the international market as a feed for poultry.

• Missouri — $64,700 to the Missouri Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the University of Missouri-Columbia, to assess the economic impact of the Missouri wine industry and its potential to expand through development of a regional identity; and, in cooperation with the Jefferson Institute, to create niche options for small-scale growers by fostering new domestic markets for amaranth and buckwheat in the processed food industry and by exploring logistical requirements for export.

• Montana — $50,000 to the Montana Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Lake County Community Development Corporation and the Northwestern Agricultural Research Station, to help small-scale producers and processors to commercialize their products by addressing their educational needs in the areas of processing, marketing, transportation, distribution, quality and food safety, and to foster development of a supportive infrastructure in the region.

• New Jersey — $38,600 to the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Rutgers University, to study long-term economic impacts of the "Jersey Fresh" state marketing program.

• North Carolina — $25,000 to the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, in cooperation with Western North Carolina Community Association Dairy Commission, Haywood Soil and Water Conservation District, and Haywood Economic Development Commission, to explore the potential for local dairy farmers to supply value-added farmstead products to retail customers in four major population centers of western Appalachia.

• North Dakota — $36,000 to the North Dakota Department of Agriculture to assess the feasibility of transporting dairy heifers from out of state to North Dakota, to better utilize North Dakota feedlot capacity while reducing the environmental burden in target dairy states.

• Pennsylvania — $61,300 to the Pennsylvania State University Experiment Station to foster edamame (non-processed, edible soybeans) as an alternative crop for small farmers by determining the most favorable varieties for cultivation; establishing planting, harvesting and post-harvest protocols; and investigating acceptance of edamame among consumers and professional chefs.

• Puerto Rico — $50,000 to the Puerto Rico Department of Agriculture to complete a comprehensive study on the logistics of delivering locally produced agricultural products to school lunch program cafeterias and to retail outlets across the island of Puerto Rico.

• South Carolina — $86,000 to the South Carolina Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Clemson University and the National Nutraceutical Center, to select the best varieties of medicinal herbs for organic production, to develop standardized cultivation and harvesting practices, to conduct field tests, and to evaluate the market for certified botanicals.

• Washington — $44,000 to the Washington State Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Pacific Shellfish Growers Association, to implement a strategic plan to promote farmed shellfish.

DNR Host Special Events At Maryland State Fair

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — What would you do with 400,000+ acres of land, thousands of miles of streams, multitudes of fish, mammals, birds and reptiles and the biggest estuary in North America?

Take a journey through the Chesapeake Bay and Maryland's most treasured natural resources and learn how to play, protect, restore, participate and enjoy the outdoors by visiting the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) booth at the 121st Maryland State Fair at the Timonium Fairgrounds, Fri., Aug. 23 through Labor Day, Mon., Sept. 2.

At DNR's interactive booth, participants can:

• Visit the DNR Website;

• Make some paper using natural pulp;

• Taste some "Wild Rice" or pumpkin soup;

• Buy a Black Bear stamp;

• Buy a fishing license;

• Join in our various contests;

• Or learn how to build a rain barrel or garden for your home.

"This year, in addition to our Scales-n-Tales, fish and wildlife exhibits and our live stage presentations by dedicated DNR staff, we are pleased to announce that Saturday, Aug. 24 will be officially known as the Maryland State Fair "Natural Resources Day," said DNR Secretary J. Charles Fox. "I encourage everyone to stop by and visit our customer service staff, Natural Resource Police officers, park rangers and biologists and our various conservation partners to learn more about how to enjoy and protect Maryland's natural resources."

INJECTORS

Have you serviced yours?

Bad Injectors Cause:

- Excessive Fuel Consuption
- Poor Starting
- Loss Of Power
- Misfiring
- Black Smoke
- Overheating

So service them regularly!

As always, injectors are checked free of charge

CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Specialty

We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined out puts, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1-2 cyl.)

- Fits most standard crankshafts - 1", 1⅛", 1⁷/₁₆"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

Looking to Upgrade Your Cornhead Before Harvest?

Hoober has the new 6 Row and 8 Row Case IH 2200 Series Cornheads in Stock

- Hydraulic adjustable stripper plates allow on-the-go adjustments in varying crop conditions
- Low profile poly-hoods and dividers effectively "hug" the ground, moving more ears into the header to increase efficiency
- Larger diameter auger (16") moves more crop into the feeding area, increasing the feeding capacity of the cornhead.

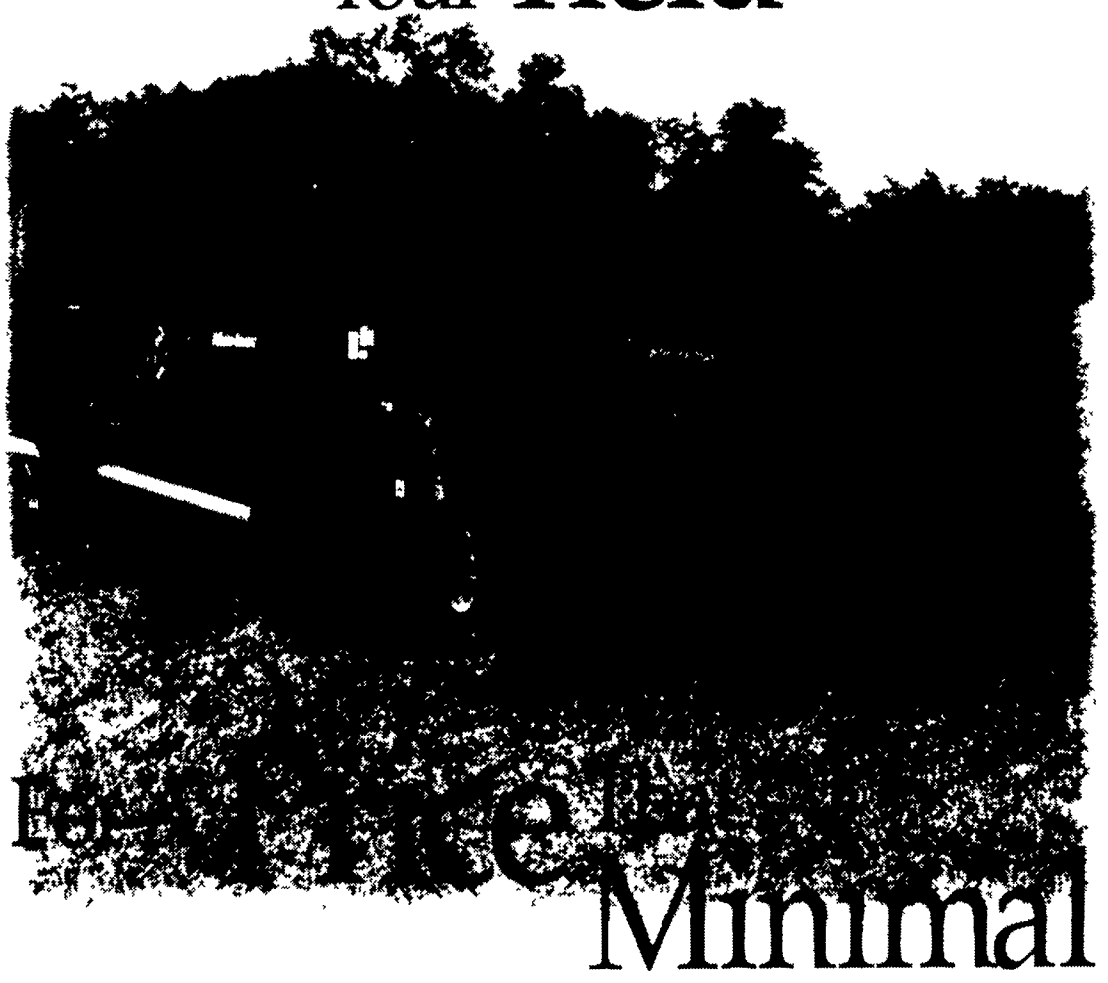
Maximize Your Yield Potential



Minimal Effort

When it comes to improving Relative Feed Value and maximizing the Crude Protein in hay, nothing outperforms the New Idea® 5209 Disc Mower Conditioner. Its high-speed disc cutterbar glides through fields with ease, even in extreme conditions. And the unique Ti-Cor® Conditioning Rolls gently condition the stems, speeding drydown.

The 5209's reliable design keeps you mowing and conditioning year after year. With the segmented cutterbar driveshaft, a New Idea innovation, the cutterbar is truly modular, which makes for easy maintenance.

To see the disc mower conditioner that'll exceed your expectations — not your budget, visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today.

"Takes feed into the mix very evenly."

- Matt Wanner, Wanner's Pride-N-Joy, Narvon, PA

Wanner's Pride-N-Joy farm in Narvon, PA, bought their second Roto-Mix when they increased herd size two years ago. They mix about 6 mixes per day, and each mix takes four to five minutes.

Wanner's Pride-N-Joy is feeding 400 milk cows and 50 to 100 heifers. Their herd average is 23,500 lbs.

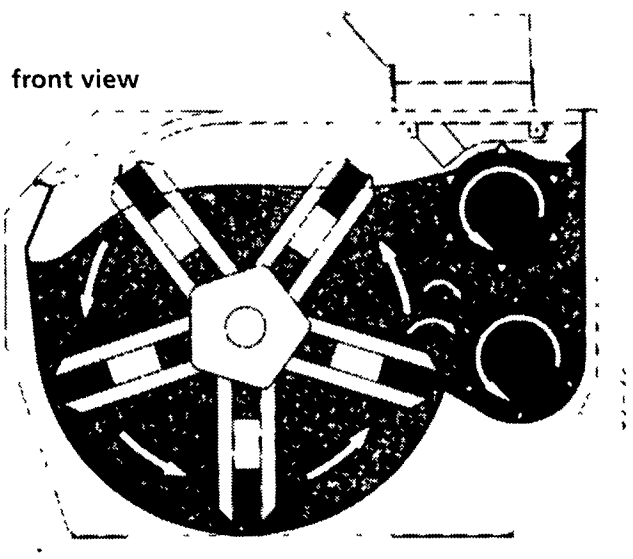
KNIGHT . . . the REEL Advantage

A Faster, More Thorough Mix

front view



The large-diameter reel provides a gentle tumbling action and the two side augers produce an end-to-end blending action. This unique combination ensures faster mixing and unloading times, and a very thorough mix, even when mixing small batches.

3000 Series Reel TMR Mixers

from 147 – 950 Cubic Feet Mixing Capacity

Companies Team Up To Provide Centralized DNA Services

LAFAYETTE, Colo. — Two leading livestock genetics companies have signed an agreement to provide some of the most updated, affordable genetic services to the North American beef industry.

Frontier Beef Systems, LLC (FBS; Lafayette, Colo.), in a nonexclusive alliance with GeneSeek, Inc. (Lincoln, Neb.), will offer tissue sample storage and DNA-based testing services to seedstock and cow-calf producers, branded beef companies, packers, cooperatives, and alliances.

Cooperating to fill a major void in the beef cattle and meat industries, the FBS-GeneSeek strategic partnership will enable FBS to provide a range of DNA-based products.

The initial product list includes:

- SireTRACE™ — high through-put and low cost DNA-based parentage identification.
- DoubleBLACK™ — a homozygous black test.
- GeneSTAR™ Marbling diagnostic test for favorable marbling gene.
- SureTRAK™ — DNA traceability and source verification for the meat production chain.
- SireTRACE, SureTRAK, and GeneSTAR Marbling are available through an arrangement with Genetic Solutions of Brisbane, Australia.

According to Jim Gibb, FBS general manager and co-owner, "What makes our product offering so exciting is the convenience for our seedstock customers of obtaining several DNA and other genetic services from one source. Our system also offers integration of parentage results with multibreed genetic evaluation to enable calculation of EPDs on commercial animals.

"Without low-cost parentage identification, it has been impossible to calculate useful EPDs on bulls produced in multisire pastures and then later used in multisire pastures. This truly provides new opportunities for enhanced genetic selection.

"This agreement will provide companies in the beef industry a simple, one-stop mechanism to obtain an assortment of valuable products," said Abraham Oommen, co-founder and CEO of GeneSeek. "GeneSeek is pleased to provide our leading DNA testing technology platforms and experience in high quality control and dedicated customer service to enable the provision of these products through this agreement with Frontier Beef Systems."

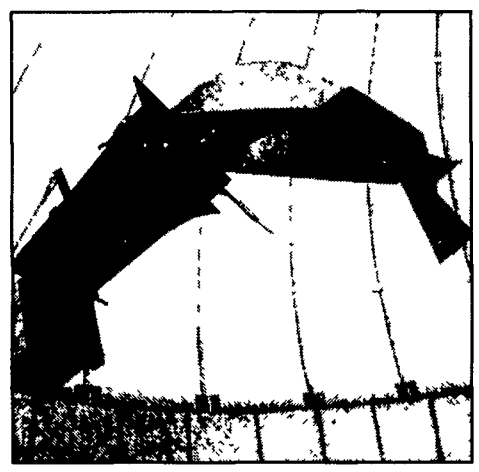
Silage Spreaders with a Heritage of Quality

Lancaster Level-Flo has been the leader in non-motorized silage spreaders for more than 25 years. Each spreader is specifically designed to meet the needs of the individual operator.



Choose the spreader that best matches the equipment you use to fill your silo.

The Model 1030 Multi-Flo is our standard silage spreader With a 9" gooseneck, it is designed for average capacity blowers and silo sizes

The Model 1200 Multi-Flo has a 12" wide gooseneck Its larger size all but eliminates plugging problems, even when you blow in haylage It is especially helpful in larger silos

The BlueMax is built for those who push high-capacity silo filling equipment to the limit All parts of the BlueMax subject to wear are made 25% heavier - and the stainless steel plate is twice as heavy For strength, there are reinforcements all around Even our well-known non-binding hinge is heavier

For more information or the location of the Lancaster dealer nearest you, call today 1-800-635-8708

What's against soft paint?

In metal roofing and siding some manufacturers use soft pliable paint to prevent cracks. The disadvantage with softer paint is that it scratches so easy. Handling during erection, flying debris during storms, children playing against it, etc can easily scratch softer paint Scratches on softer paints tend to rust prematurely Everlast heat forms to prevent this Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important.

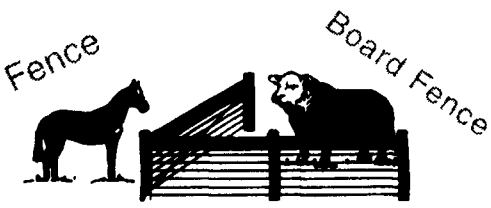
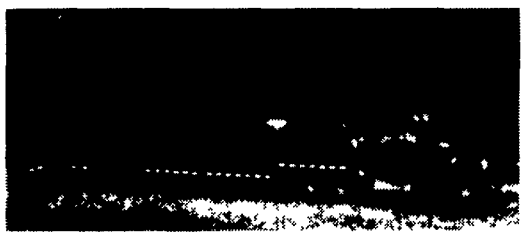
Good Fence —Good Neighbors

Rail Fence Board Fence



Sylvan Yoder and his sons Mahlon, Andy and Elmer, and several part-time and full-time employees round out a professional crew of fence installers.



Mike Goss at Farm Credit in Yeagertown has worked with Beaver Fence and their customers to arrange financing for fence projects and would be happy to arrange financing for you.

The proper equipment makes installing a fence on steep banks possible. A handshake between Sylvan and a satisfied customer complete the job.

Good Fences – Good Neighbors

Fifteen years of fencing experience and family commitment make an excellent mix for quality fence installation.

Specializing in farm and game fencing, the Sylvan Yoder family spend most of their time stretching high tensile wire through fields and forests. They also install box wire fencing as well as split rail and board fencing.

Box wire fencing is very popular for goats and sheep. It's almost like putting your animals in the barn and shutting the gate. High tensile wire is used by dairy farmers.

Beaver Fence will go about anywhere if the job is big enough, 5000 feet or more of fence will allow for a job any place in the Commonwealth.

A large inventory of post and wire along with good equipment get the jobs done easily and efficiently. A tractor trailer brings the supplies to the work site. All terrain "mules" hold the rolls of wire, drills, chain saws and other tools.

A full crew finishes up the installation of a box wire fence.

An auger or steel punch helps to break through hard rock and limestone. A special post-driving attachment on a skid-loader sets the posts in place.

Having the right equipment enables Beaver Fence to install game fencing for preserves that require 14 foot posts and 8 foot rolls of wire.

Teamwork and good communication between the crew keeps the jobs running smoothly and efficiently.

Experience, inventory, and equipment gives Beaver Fence the edge for good prices. A recent customer compared the costs for materials and setting his own fence to discover that for his job $1000 covered all the costs for a professional to install his fence properly, quickly and without using his "back" to set the posts.

Rail Fence Board Fence

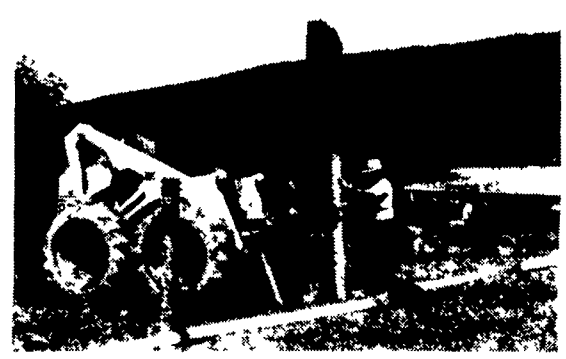
Son, Andy, staples box wire to a post while his brother Mahlon keeps it stretched tight.



Sylvan operates the post-driving attachment

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

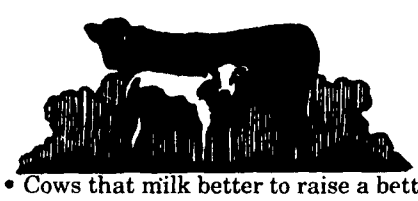
Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef



- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

PURINA SERVICE

CUSTOM PELLETS MAKE MIXING FEED A SNAP ON HOOVER DAIRY

When Gordon Hoover switched to a Purina feeding program about 10 years ago, he did it for the high level of service and no-hassle custom feed mix they deliver.

Hoover, who owns and operates the 120-cow dairy here with his wife Carole and their three daughters, used to harvest high moisture corn from the farm and buy the rest from several neighbors "here and there." A variety of feed commodities were delivered to the farm. These had to be stored, then weighed and loaded at each mixing. Ingredients could shrink in storage or even blow away while being moved on the farm.

That hassle was eliminated by Purina custom pellets. Now, Hoover doesn't worry about harvesting and storing high moisture corn or handling separate commodities. The complete pelleted feed, "formulated and mixed just for us," provides dry ground corn as well as all the protein- and mineral-balancing needs for the TMR, allowing Hoover to focus on herd management and growing alfalfa and corn for forage.

"We simplified our feeding program with this complete feed," Hoover said.

For good digestion and cow health, he aims for a 60:40 forage-to-grain ratio in the TMR, "pushing forages rather than concentrate." Under this program, "production has been very consistent."

Gordon Hoover, left, is happy with the ease of mixing Purina custom pellets with his homegrown forages, and the quality service offered by Purina representative Rick Kolb, center, and Doug High of High Bros.

Hoover's latest rolling herd average stands at 23,300 pounds of milk, 853 of fat, and 676 of protein. That meets his goal of being within the top 10 percent of Lancaster County DHIA herds - without using BST.

Low SCC counts have earned Hoover quality milk premiums for more than five consecutive years, another sign of overall good management.

Hoover's feedman is Doug High of High Bros., Gordonville. High visits the farm every other week to do the nutritional work and balance the rations. While Hoover has come to expect consistent, high-quality feed from Purina, he said it's the accessible service that really makes the difference.

"My philosophy on feed companies is that they're all working out of the same playbook," Hoover said. "My biggest criteria is service. They have to meet my needs and deliver the feed on time."

For Hoover, that means Purina.
